FOREWORD

This Descriptive Classified Catalog has been prepared, for subscribers to the Kodascope Libraries, as an aid in selecting Library Films.

Kodascope Films are 16 m/m ($\frac{5}{8}$ inch) in width, have a special perforation and are made only on slow burning film, which is free from insurance restrictions and does not require a fireproof booth.

A full reel of Kodascope Film is approximately 400 feet in length and has the same number of pictures as a standard 1,000-foot reel of theatrical size film. It requires the same length of time for projection at normal speed—16 minutes.

Suggestions to Subscribers

A Film Library is like a Book Library in that it is subject to constantly changing demands for the subjects in its possession. Unlike a Public Library, however, a Film Library is a business institution, which must earn its expenses and a fair return upon the capital invested, and it is quite evident that this can be done only by keeping the films continually in use. This means that the Subscriber cannot send in a list of subjects desired, and expect to get all of them at once. In selecting subjects desired, Subscribers are urged to send in a list of from two to three times as many subjects as they desire, otherwise the Librarians will be compelled to substitute subjects of which some may not be satisfactory to the Subscriber.

To assist in an intelligent selection of subjects with the least necessary effort, subjects in the Kodascope Libraries are arranged in eight classes as follows:

Class	Subjects	Reel numbers from
1	Travel, Sports, Manners and Customs	1,000 up
2	Industry, Forestry and Agriculture	2,000 "
3	Popular Science, Useful Arts, and Natural History	3,000 "
4	Comedies and Juvenile	4,000 "
6	Reconstructed and Modern History	6,000 "
7	Animated Cartoon Comedies	7,000 "
8	Dramas	8,000 "

Where two or more subjects are combined on a single reel, each subject is given an independent number corresponding to its class.

Subjects will not be divided and shipped in parts.

Subscribers will obtain greater satisfaction in the regular weekly use of a certain number of reels than in the desultory or occasional use of an irregular number.

Five reels make a very popular program. Most of the features are of that length, and will not be divided. Also, with five reels an excellent miscellaneous program can be selected, covering a variety of subjects. For special occasions, programs of any length can be obtained.

If for any reason, Subscribers having regular weekly service wish to suspend one or more shipments, it is only necessary to advise the Librarian to that effect, before the scheduled shipments are made.

Explanation of Film Service Charges

The principal item of expense to a Film Library is the replacement of the film. The continuous use of a Library film causes it gradually to wear out. This wear may not be apparent for a long time, but eventually those films—new today—will have to be replaced by the Library with new ones. Therefore, rental charges must cover the inspection, repair and eventual replacement.

It is quite evident that the Kodascope Library in New York cannot afford the transportation charges and loss of time incidental to furnishing a program to a Subscriber in a distant city (requiring nearly two weeks in transit), for the same price that it could furnish the same program to each of three or more New York Subscribers who could use it during the same period of time.

Therefore, the charges for film service at present depend on the Subscriber's distance from the nearest Library.

The basing rate shown in this catalog is for one day's use within the city limits in which the Library is located.

For reels held more than one day, in any zone, add 50% to the basing rate for each extra day held, whether used or not. (See "Films Ordered for Particular Date" on page 6.)

For points outside of any Library city but in the first and second postal zones (0-150 miles), add 10% to the basing rate.

For points in the third zone (150-300 miles), add 25% to the basing rate.

For the fourth zone (300-600 miles), add 50% to the basing rate.

• For the fifth zone (600-1,000 miles), add 75% to the basing rate.

For the sixth to eighth zones, double the basing rate.

At the rates quoted for the various postal zones, Kodascope Libraries make no charge for loss of time in transit and rentals are charged for reels only while in Subscriber's possession.

Transportation by parcel post will be paid by the Kodascope Libraries in both directions.

A minimum charge of $1.50 will be made for any Film Service rendered.

Note: Minor repairs, such as breaks, cleaning, etc., will be made by the Kodascope Libraries without charge, but serious injury will be charged to the Subscriber.

The entire Motion Picture Industry is on a cash basis and such a service as that of the Kodascope Libraries cannot be otherwise.

Because of the high value of the merchandise that the Kodascope Libraries supply on a rental basis, a deposit of $25.00 is required of every Subscriber as a guarantee that the Subscriber will comply with the rules and regulations of the Kodascope Libraries, will pay all bills and will return films promptly and in good condition.

Purpose of Deposit

At its inception the Kodascope Library faced the alternative of establishing a completely equipped credit department, or the simpler requirement of a cash deposit. The former plan would have necessitated increasing our basing rentals on Film Service to cover its cost, together with that of the extra bookkeeping involved and an occasional loss through the fallibility of any credit system.

It was decided that a cash business at the lowest price, with a small guarantee deposit, would be more satisfactory to our large number of subscribers from all over the United States, many of whom would necessarily be mail order customers. Two years of experience have very happily justified this policy. Any other arrangement than a small cash deposit, would require an increase in the entire schedule of basing rates of rental.

This deposit of $25.00 remains the property of the Subscriber, and any remaining portion of it can be withdrawn at any time that the Subscriber wishes to cease obtaining film service.

Paying for Film Service

The low rental prices charged do not provide for the investigation of credit standing or charges for collecting.

Kodascope Library Service is furnished only on a cash-in-advance basis from which no exception whatever can be made.

A new Subscriber's initial deposit of $25.00 filed with his "Application for Film Service" establishes a limited, standing credit.

When the first lot of subjects is returned to the Library, a charge for their rental will be mailed and should be paid at once, to avoid possible interruption of Film Service.

If the first bill is not paid before the second lot of subjects gets back to the Library, further service may be automatically suspended until the account is paid.

If the Subscriber wishes to have Service charges rendered monthly instead of for each shipment, an advance payment of an amount approximately equal to a month's anticipated service will insure this convenience and avoid the necessity of paying for each shipment as soon as it is returned and billed. (See also Special Subscription on page 169.)

The subscriber may request the return of his credit balance whenever he desires to suspend film service. On renewing service he will be asked to file a new deposit.

Not more than two lots of subjects can be out to a customer at one time and all rentals will be based on the time the subjects are held by the Subscriber, whether used or not. (See "Films Ordered for a Particular Date," page 6.)

Why Rental Is Charged for Every Day Held

The profits of a Film Library depend upon the continuous earnings of its films. An idle film not only makes no profit, but it deteriorates in value from age and changes in public taste.

The fact that the customer may not be using the film does not lessen his responsibility.

A taxi waiting for you at the door; a forgotten gas jet burning in the cellar; money borrowed from a bank, even though unused; idle films on your closet shelf; all have to be paid for by you whether you derive any benefit from them or not. The taxi driver, the gas company, the bank, and the film library are equally entitled to their necessary charges for service rendered.

Films Ordered for a Particular Date

The Kodascope Libraries cannot accept responsibility for unusual delays in Parcel Post, but films ordered for a particular date are shipped by us far enough in advance to allow for all reasonable delays. Frequently these reels arrive a day, or even two days, before the date wanted. If they are held by the subscriber, used only on the date for which they were ordered and returned to us the following day, only a single day's charge will be made.

If, however, the subscriber wishes to use them before the particular date he may do so, but in this case they must be returned the day following such use if only a single day's charge is to be made.

In other words, films ordered for a particular date cannot be used both on the particular date and also on one or more previous (or following) days, without paying for all the days on which the films are used.

Subscribers are urged to fill in the spaces on the return label showing the date on which the films were received and the date on which they were sent back to the Library. These dates are accepted by the Library as a basis for billing and careful attention to this important detail will avoid misunderstandings.

Ordering Films By Telegraph.

Enrolled subscribers in good credit standing can always order Library subjects by telegraph with the assurance that such orders will receive immediate and careful attention, if received in time to be filled during regular office hours.

In order to shorten these telegrams, we have prepared a code which can be easily used.

If the subjects are desired for showing on a certain day, it is only necessary to mention the day of the week as the first word in the message.

For each subject selected, at least two alternates should be listed, and for such alternates the code word should be prefixed with "or"—— both written as a single word. For each additional subject wanted the code word should be prefixed with "and."

If the subjects are ordered by telegraph on very short notice, so that it is doubtful if they can reach their destination by ordinary parcel post, the subscriber who wishes to avail himself of the advantages of "Special Handling" or "Special Delivery" can signify such attention by using the single word "Handling" or "Delivery."

As an example of the advantages of this abbreviated system of ordering, take the following ordinary telegraphic form:

Please ship me for showing Monday evening LITTLE CHURCH AROUND THE CORNER or WHERE THE NORTH BEGINS or HEART OF A HERO and ADVENTURER or ROARS AND UPROARS or FELIX IN THE BONE AGE special handling and special delivery."

Abbreviated as outlined above, this message would read:

"Monday sagi orsaga orsabur andgade orgaca ornafa handling delivery."

In ordering by wire, do not forget that to avoid disappointment or substitution, it is necessary to select alternates, or if you prefer to leave the selection of substitutes to the Librarian, add the single word "Substitute." This the Librarian will understand to mean that you wish a substitute from the same class of subjects in which the selected subject is not available.

By our record system the same subject is never sent twice to the same subscriber unless the subscriber states clearly that he wishes it again for a second showing.

To avoid disappointment by delays in parcel post transmission, it is better when ordering subjects either by letter or by wire, to allow at least one extra day more than would usually be necessary for ordinary parcel post transmission.

If a particular subject is desired and no alternate or substitute will be acceptable, then it is desirable for the subscriber to make such reservation a week or two in advance, requesting definite acceptance if possible.

Kodascope Library subjects may be purchased for $50.00 per reel from the Parent Library in New York only. Reels sold are not returnable.

FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF FILM SERVICE

1. Be sure to read and preserve the book of instructions sent with the projector. Nine-tenths of all trouble is due to failure to read the instructions.

2. Oil the machine frequently with a very little sewing machine oil or preferably the oil supplied with your projector, but be careful to wipe off all excess oil so that it does not come in contact with the film.

3. Keep the gate clean. As the film passes through the gate a certain amount of emulsion is scraped off which, if allowed to accumulate, forms a hard scale on the guides. Sometimes the friction of this scale is so great that the perforations of the film are torn by the intermittent movement trying to feed the films thus tightly held.

The film guides should be wiped with a chamois skin after every film and cleaned with a bone scraper whenever scale is found adhering to them.

4. Be sure to leave a full loop at both the top and bottom of the gate. The motion of the film in the gate is intermittent, while elsewhere it is continuous. If the loop is too short, the perforations in the film will be torn and the film rendered useless unless the damaged portions are replaced. For such damage the subscriber will be considered responsible.

5. Be sure that your lenses are clean and that you have the best possible focus obtainable while the film is running.

6. Do not run your projector too fast, as in doing so you produce unnatural movements in the figures on the screen and may injure both film and machine.

7. Do not run it too slowly as this is productive of unnecessary flicker.

8. We prefer that films be returned to us without rewinding—we re-wind during inspection.

1000 Code CABA Wild Animals of Africa Chester-Outing

The party of white Hunters and cameramen accompanied by African natives who are shown first in a native war dance, set out from Nairobi in search of wild animals and animal pictures, passing a small drove of native cows as they embark. Their first find is a drove of Zebras, then Water-buck, Giraffes (one of which is captured), Gnu, Buffaloes, the Eland, Sprink-bok and Impalla are found. Finally a successful lion hunt results in the capture of a huge lion and lioness. An enjoyable and instructive subject with clever titles by Katherine Hilliker.

To quote the narrator, "the Rapids of British Guiana lead a scandalously fast life." We find this true on a long journey through the turbulent rushing waters—only the skill of the boatmen averting shipwreck on the jagged rocks in our course. No sport for weak nerves this, but for others it furnishes thrill after thrill. We are rewarded also by intimate glimpses into the lives of primitive Patamonan Indians, and see them weaving cloth, making baskets, cultivating sugar cane and crushing the stalks, making tapioca, which is one of their main food staples, and also see their ingenious method of wringing out the poisonous juices as this food is in course of preparation for eating.

The natives live in jungle homes made of branches and covered with thatched roofs—the more pretentious ones being of two stories.

A Japanese screen design on tapestry of dead limbs upon which Herons are cleverly embroidered, inspired a desire on the part of the spectator to visit a country where such scenes are a reality. A trip by aeroplane to some islands in the Gulf of Mexico brings the spectator to the breeding grounds of millions of birds among which are seen Pelicans, Buzzards, Herons, Cranes and Man-o'-war birds. Some of the scenes of the nesting and rearing of the young are very interesting and beautiful. Final scenes show what might well have been the original of the Japanese screen design.

Kongo San is one of those interesting out of the way places that one reads about but few have an opportunity to see.

Starting out from the southern portion of Manchuria, we travel through part of Korea and eventually reach Kongo San, founded by Buddhist Monks many hundreds of years ago in an almost inaccessible nook surrounded by high mountains. Here is situated a 500-year-old Monastery in which a colony of 100 monks live in almost complete isolation.

Journeying on, we pass the beautiful Three Day Lake, named from the fact that its beauty enchanted the Princess who discovered it, so that for three days she gazed in rapture forgetting either to eat or sleep.

The Kongo River flows through the middle of the valley, being fed by waterfalls, some of which we are permitted to see. The Flying Phoenix and the Fall of the Nine Dragons are wonderfully picturesque and fall from great height.

With the cameraman we climb to the Pinnacle of the Clouds, from which we gain an extensive view of the wild, mountainous country. And descending again we get our final view of Kongo San from the sea.

A most interesting travel scenic. Much of the trip was taken by boat along the labyrinthine canal system which covers much of the country. The first part of the trip is over a canal which was old as long ago as 486 B. C. Myriads of boats are seen everywhere, and an innumerable number of very picturesque arch bridges span the canals at frequent intervals. One junk-boat-building establishment looks as if it could furnish all the boats required in China. Riverside laundries are seen everywhere, and towing barges by man power seems to be a favorite method of transportation. A curious irrigating pump worked by coolies as a treadmill is followed by pictures of duck growing, fishing and picturesque sailing junks. The leaning Pagoda of Su-Chow is reminiscent of the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

A visit to the quaint and picturesque city of Volendam Holland, where our attention is drawn to the children in their baggy trousers, wooden shoes and winged caps. We see them at work and at play, rolling hoops, playing football, etc. Their stiff wooden shoes affect their walk, giving the children a peculiar gait. They are very particular to leave their shoes at the door when entering the house.

The streets are really the brick-paved tops of dikes which keep the water from overflowing this extremely low flat country. There are no autos on the streets nor do we see any beasts of burden or other means of transportation. Apparently "Shank's mare" performs this service for rich and poor alike. Many of the men are fishermen on the Zuider Zee and their picturesque boats line the wharves.

We visit Marken, a small island nearby, and observe slight differences in its costumes from those of Volendam, though the general characteristics are the same and as in Volendam we see children everywhere. An instructive and fascinating journey to an unusually interesting land.

First comes the Parthenon, built about the Sixth Century B. C. and called the "most perfect monument of ancient art." Then comes the Stadium, 330 B. C., built of Pentellic marble. This huge structure was the original site of the Olympic games and seats 50,000 people. We visit also the Place de la Constitution, Boulevard de l'Université, Academy of Science and the University. Despite the fact that for years the children of Roumania have been victims of neglect and poverty, they are bright and very responsive. As a rule they know far more of work than of play. They are too valuable as workers to be forced to go to school and only those who want to go to school do so. If they don't like the teacher they stay away.

Each home has its own small flock of sheep which are generally tended by the children, and some of the happiest of the Roumanian youngsters are the boy shepherds up in the remote parts of Transylvania. The farm houses are made of brick and mortared with mud. The bricks are moulded by girls, who after becoming expert, can make as many as 200 in a day. The moulded bricks are baked in the sun. Brick making is hard work for a girl, but the Roumanian youngsters are used to hard work. We are given other views of them carrying heavy burdens, and have an opportunity of seeing many types of children at work and at play.

All about llamas. A remarkable, sure-footed beast of burden used in the upper Andes in South America.

We are told that these llamas were among the claimants for the credit of winning the World War. They transported considerable quantities of vanadium ore, which was of the utmost value in making munitions, etc.

Some clever photographic stunts are shown by reverse action, and in one double exposure the llama pack train is shown moving along the edge of a lake, while their shadows move in the opposite direction just below them. Several long trains of these sure-footed beasts are seen winding along precipitous trails through wonderful mountain scenery.

Some of the queer habits and characteristics of the animals are shown, among others the fact that a herd of llamas can be entirely confined by a single rope passing around the outside of the herd resting on their bodies, but confining only their necks. It seems that the stupid beasts lack the intelligence to lower their heads and pass under the rope.

The title apparently comes from the name given to one of the llamas. An interesting travel scenic.

The Mindanao Indians in the Philippine Islands live almost entirely on rice. From youth to old age it is their principal food. We visit the native village of Sibulon. The houses are of thatch and everything is extremely primitive. A mother is giving her baby a bath in water poured from a hollow bamboo tube. We prefer our own bathtub, thank you! One of the amusements of the natives is cock fighting. Another is chewing betel nuts. This is a national habit. We hope it won't spread! It ruins the teeth and is far from tempting to an easterner tho the natives get a lot of satisfaction out of it. A close-up of an old native chief and his fifteen wives shows them all smilingly and toothlessly chewing while they oblige by sitting for their picture.

This subject shows man's use of the dog in work as well as in sport. The early scenes are laid in the Far North where titles tell us that the Eskimo huskie is invaluable. Then the pictures proceed to show not huskies, but our own domestic type of dog such as St. Bernard and Newfoundland being used as pack carriers rather than as sledge pullers. Then follow several scenes of prospectors rafting down turbulent northern rivers with their dogs on the log rafts with them. One of the unfortunate dogs is shown after an encounter with a porcupine, which has severely wounded the dog with a number of its quills around the dog's mouth. Next follow several scenes illustrating Bird dogs working in the brush and pointing quail. The training of Belgian Police dogs for high jumping, with slow motion analysis of the dogs jumping is very interesting. A touch of heart interest is given at the end with a big jar rolling down hill and after it comes to a stop four tiny puppies emerge one after the other from the narrow neck of the jar.

Starting from the station at Jungfrau-Jock we climb up toward the Glacier, which is 14 miles long and several miles wide and full of deep crevasses and reached only after some difficult climbing. In one place we look down and see a veritable sea of clouds one mile below us. Suddenly a storm swoops down upon us and here, high above a fertile sunny valley, we are caught in a mid-summer blizzard. Going on we climb down to the Marjelsee, the strangest lake in all Switzerland. It is surrounded on all sides by ice and is made of the melted ice water.

Beginning with the first step in which children are taught the preliminary swimming motions at their play, we see swimmers progressing through the successive stages of learning to be proficient in the water. Partially in normal and partly in slow-motion the crawl, breast, trudgeon and other strokes are illustrated. We also see imitations of the swimming methods of various animals, viz., the frog, seal, porpoise and crab. The latter part of the picture is taken up entirely with some splendidly executed figures in the water by expert girl swimmers who form symmetrical designs such as triangles, squares, circles, stars, etc., while floating in the water.

All swimmers will like this subject, which will be especially valuable to boys and girls camps, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A. and other athletic organizations.

The daily trip of one of the huge passenger planes in the English Channel Service. Arrived at the flying field we watch the plane being brought from its hangar and see its folding wings spread and secured in position for flight. Ten passengers enter and take seats in the roomy cabin. Each is allowed fifty pounds of baggage.

Approaching London we have a marvelous view of the Houses of Parliament, Westminster Bridge with its Big Ben Tower and the other prominent buildings, which as we rapidly pass them stand out with stereoscopic effect. On we fly over the English farming country with its hedges and well tilled fields until over Beachy Head, we have our last glimpse of England. Then tea is served, and in a few minutes having passed a return plane, La Belle France comes into view. Again we pass over a wonderful countryside consisting of small, intensively cultivated farms, and for a long distance we follow a famous old road built centuries ago by Caesar and still in constant use. out of the two-year old baby trees to the picking and slipping of the golden crop. Lemon trees know no season. They bloom and bear at the same time all the year round. An interesting activity is that of fumigating to destroy insect pests. A balloon-like cover is placed over the tree and bug-killing gases are introduced under this. As the gases would be injurious to the tree itself if used while the sun is shining, they are used at night. Occasionally a light frost threatens injury to the crop, and to prevent this large numbers of oil heaters are placed between the trees.

Lemons require careful handling and many precautions are taken to avoid marring or bruising when picking them.

They are then washed and sent to the storage rooms, where they are cured and ripened for about eight weeks, after which they are sorted for size and color, individually wrapped and packed for market.

Statistics show that there is a higher percentage of safe deliveries of goods shipped in barrels than in any other container. To provide the great number of barrels that are required is a huge undertaking. We see men working in the forests getting out timber which is transported to the mills by rail and by river. These logs are sawed into boards from which blanks for barrel-heads are cut. The blanks are kiln dried, then the pieces are matched by experts and ingenious machines quickly cut out the circular heads and plane their edges in one operation. The heads are then baled for shipping. In the stave mill large logs, which are first softened in live steam, are transformed into barrel staves and bundled for shipment. The hoops are made of elm, which also softened in live steam, are then shaped and coiled. The several barrel parts are now ready for shipment to cooperages where they are later assembled into barrels.

Building the Brooklyn Bridge was one of the world's greatest engineering achievements. In this scientific animated drawing we are shown the way the excavations for the huge towers were made and the towers themselves built. The four main cables, each made of thousands of smaller cables, were next hung in place. Then the roadways were built out in both directions from both towers at the same time and suspended from the main cables. When the roadways finally met, the task of building the bridge was ended.

ings which clearly indicate the method of their detonation. The first is operated by water pressure entering orifices in the shell of the bomb, as the bomb sinks to greater depth. When it reaches the depth for which it is adjusted to explode the pressure releases a firing pin which fires a detonator and that in turn explodes the main charge. The submarine cannot stand the extra pressure caused by the explosion and collapses.

The second type is the aeroplane depth bomb, which is used by aeroplanes sighting submarines below the surface and is dropped from a height. This is equipped to explode a detonator as it hits the surface of the water and this in turn lights a time fuse which explodes the main charge when the proper depth is reached.

A good comedy with clever and witty titles. It is a story of two rivals for the affection of a girl, and these rivals are continually playing pranks on each other.

A herd of ostriches is very cleverly introduced to contribute to the comedy of the situation, and some of the most amusing scenes are those in which one of the rivals masquerades as an ostrich, and imposes on the good nature and credulity of his rival.

Some unusual automobile horse-play is introduced, and the titling in that connection will prove amusing to everyone. The introduction of "a terrible blow" (hurricane), produces some humorous situations that will enliven even the coldest audience.

Featuring Dot Farley and Hughie Mack

This is a very funny slapstick comedy on the same order as "Roars and Up-

Next comes the news that Hughie has been left a legacy of $100,000.00 conditional upon his maintaining the pets left by his dying Uncle. The family start out in their "Fierce-Arrow" to claim the pets and the legacy. To their horror the Express Agent delivers two full grown elephants as the pets. At once it is evident that the legacy is not an unmixed blessing. On the way home the elephants become somewhat obstreperous and clean out a fruit stand, etc. Exhausted with his efforts in getting the pets home, Hughie falls into an uneasy slumber in which he has a vivid nightmare of oriental splendor which the audience enjoys with him. While engaged in a terrific struggle with a leopard he awakens to find that he is shaking his wife, who is protesting in kind.

Then come some perfectly hilarious scenes of the elephants entering and taking possession of a hotel, where they proceed to traverse the corridors, enter the sleeping and bath rooms and even crash through the walls, thus producing a series of extremely funny situations among the panic-stricken guests.

From the H. C. Witwer story in the Cosmopolitan Magazine George O'Hara plays the part of an aspiring young playwright who has just had a play rejected by Tower, a successful but conceited actor-manager, on the plea that his underworld stuff is not true to life. George's sweetheart, Alberta, persuades Tower to take her to a dance in a shady resort in lower New York, where, as a result of a frame-up, Tower becomes involved in a rather compromising situation from which he escapes only after a terrific fight and a lot of rough stuff by the other patrons of the resort. The place is raided and later Tower meets in a police cell the young playwright (doing time for a board bill) and tells him that he will accept his play, which he has now decided, is a realistic portrayal of the conditions.

This play gathers much of its humor from the clever but slangy titles tho it is not quite as refined as some fastidious audiences might wish.

which is another reason for his ambition to get into the big Cadler-Fulton game. On the big day Ernie, sitting among the "subs," sees his team being trimmed by Fulton. He begs the coach to let him play, but to no avail. Then with only five minutes left to play he has an inspiration which he explains to the coach who finally consents to let him try it. In the next play Ernie is given the ball and is picked up by the members of his team and thrown right over the other team, which strategy gives him a chance to run down the field for a touch-down before the enemy recovers from its surprise. This wins the game for Cadler and, incidentally, the girl for Ernie.

6001 Code MABE Historical Episode in the Life of Michael Angelo Independent

Michael Angelo, famous as artist, sculptor and architect, is by many considered one of the greatest geniuses that ever lived. At the opening of this story he was at work on his statue of Moses. His fame had grown so great that rival artists were jealous and hoping that he would fail as a painter, persuaded Pope Julius the Second to command him to paint the Sistine Chapel. Michael Angelo suspected their purpose, but accepted the commission, and for four years he worked on his back painting the wonderful ceiling of the Chapel. The finished work is the greatest masterpiece that the hand of man has ever turned out. It is very large, covering the entire ceiling with a design portraying numerous biblical incidents and containing three hundred and forty-three different figures. Even his rivals were forced to acknowledge the marvelous beauty of the design and its execution. The task finished, the master returned to his statue of Moses, which now stands in the little church of San Pietro in Rome.

Max sends his sweetheart a birthday letter with eighteen X's for kisses. He asks the Clown to hold the ink bottle while he writes the letter, but in his clumsiness the Clown spills the ink on the letter and spoils it, upon which Max asks his secretary to typewrite it. The secretary is called away from the machine and the Clown starts to investigate it. Reading the letter still in the machine and grasping its significance, he proceeds to jump up and down on the letter X until he has greatly increased the age of the young lady. Upon receipt of the letter she rushes to the office to upbraid Max for his (apparent) heartlessness, and arrives just as Max is trying to assist his secretary to get the Clown out of her hair, where he has secreted himself. Max's sweetheart opens the door, and, of course, she puts the wrong construction upon the scene. Max in his embarrassment shrinks from life size to that of the Clown, who immediately proceeds to engage him in a sparring match and put him to flight. In the end Max and the Clown both take refuge in the oblivion of the ink bottle.

The artist draws a bicycle for the clown with invisible ink and although the audience cannot see it, the clown gets on and rides easily. The artist then hides and tells the clown that if he wants him he must follow along a chalk line, which he leaves as a trail. Later the clown does the same thing to the artist, running away and leaving a chalk line which gives the artist a merry chase. Finally he reaches a room in which the walls are covered with sketches which the clown has made of himself. The clown hides among them so that it is impossible to tell which is he and which is only a sketch, but the artist finally frightens the clown away and in his flight he jumps into the invisible ink and disappears.

Featuring Dorothy Gish and Glenn Hunter

Jolanda Whipple, "flapper," thinks only of the "men"—more particularly of Nathaniel, son of Ezra Huggins, the village druggist. Natty is woefully fickle—each new girl he meets attracts him—but Jolanda is forgiving and determined "to land him," if for no other reason than to prevent Marguerite from getting him. Old Huggins dislikes all flappers because they "turn Natty's head" and so he endeavors to keep him working in the drug store by driving the girls away. But by chance Jolanda overhears a conversation between old Huggins and some others and learns that they are operating a still in Huggins' barn. She also gets additional information involving him criminally after which she goes around with Natty in open defiance of his father, who is forced to give his consent to their engagement. Fearful of the consequences if his still should be discovered, old Huggins sets fire to his barn. Natty has a narrow escape from death but is rescued by Jolanda who is in turn rescued by Lemuel Philpotts, a bashful fellow who has long worshipped her at a distance without daring to speak to her. With Jolanda out of sight, Natty promptly turns to Marguerite again, but Jolanda, having at last found a constant lover, is truly happy. A human, humorous story, well told with clever, slangy flapper titles which add greatly to the atmosphere as well as the amusement of the spectator.

the outlook for moonshiners. One day Corporal Jim captures a gang of three—two of them rough looking men and the third a young “boy.” Then men are locked up in the Post jail, but the boy seems so young that they allow him to eat with them and also to remain outside the jail that night. Next morning they find all their prisoners gone, but right after making this discovery, the boy comes back, and explains that he was forced through his fear of the moonshiners, to aid in their escape, although he later escaped from them and returned to the Post. To their great astonishment they then discover that the “boy” is in reality a girl who has been held in the power of the moonshiners and who tells them a pitiful story.

The men are touched and decide to do all they can to help the girl and upon the arrival of Padre that day, they turn the girl over to him to be put in a school where she will have good care and an education. Corporal Jim gives the Padre all his small savings to be used for the various needs of the girl, Mary, while she is at the school.

The search for the moonshiners then continues and results in their capture, but not until after Corporal Jim has been shot by one of them. His recovery is greatly cheered by the letters he receives from Mary and the attachment begun under such unusual circumstances continues until four years later when she graduates from the school and the story ends as all good movies should—the young couple presumably living happily ever after.

Hearts in Exile

World

Featuring Clara Kimball Young, Montague Love and Vernon Steele

“Hearts in Exile,” the novel by John Oxenham, from which the pictures have been made, was one of the big fiction successes of the year when it was published. The pictureplay is even more intensely exciting than the book.

In the character of Hope Ivanovna, Clara Kimball Young has a role that calls for true histrionic ability. The part is a highly dramatic one, telling as it does, of the love, trials and tribulations of a young Russian girl who is loved by three men. One of the men, the chief of police, exiles the other two men to Siberia and Hope follows Serge Palma, the man she has married, to that hopeless locality.

In the chilly regions of Siberia where the political prisoners of Russia toil through a tortured existence, love comes to the heroine in the strangest possible fashion. This is, throughout the entire length of its five reels, a pictureplay of truly absorbing interest. The manner in which fate plays with the three principal characters in this production is startling and thrilling. Altogether the production is on a particularly high plane. The scenic effects are exceptional, the cast is notable and the illustrated titles make “Hearts in Exile” a film play of extraordinary merit.

Art critics who have seen “Hearts in Exile” declare that the film should be preserved in the archives of the national art institute because of the extraordinary beauty of the snow scenes found in this feature.

An artistic production founded on Sir Edward Burne-Jones painting of King Cophetua and the Beggar Maid, which itself is founded on Tennyson's poem. A love story in which the artist helps to smooth the course of true love between the Earl of Winton and a daughter of his gardener by using them both as models in his painting, at the same time overcoming the objections of her brother who fears that there is so much difference in their social stations that the match cannot be a happy one. In the end all comes out smoothly and the lovers are happily united. Beautiful settings and unusual photographic effects add to the charm of this subject.

8005 Code SABAR The Young Painter Tri-Art

Featuring Mary Astor and Pierre Gendron

Inspired by the famous painting of the same title by Rembrandt. A touching, modern story of a young painter who finds inspiration in a copy of the original painting.

His ambition to succeed in his profession is fostered by his friendship for the beautiful girl who takes art lessons from him at his studio on Long Island.

She is the daughter of wealthy parents and is beloved by a very fine young man, who was the soldier companion of the young painter during the world-war.

Realizing his inability to provide for a wife in the style that his sweetheart has been accustomed to, the artist goes away to a city studio where he befriends an orphan newsboy, who becomes his companion.

Stricken with illness, the young painter gradually loses his strength until he is a mere shadow of his former self, when at last discovered by the other man, who realizes that the heroine's heart is given to the young painter. Alas, the illness has progressed too far and the painter passes away surrounded by those he loves and who love him. The final scene where his soul leaves its mortal tenement and follows the master, is one of great beauty and pathos. The entire production is beautifully directed and inspired by lofty sentiment and exquisite ideals.

Featuring Alice Brady, Frank Mayo and Kate Lester

Around the story of the making of the first American flag Henry A. Du Souchet has written a patriotic drama of Revolutionary days which will always meet with popular approval. The tricks of suspense to hold the interest, such as the rider with the pardon to save the falsely accused spy at the last moment, are convincingly staged and acted, and only the most critical of audiences will fail to be moved by the action, which has many good moments. The tale moves swiftly and is exciting at all times. Moreover, it is carefully appointed as to Colonial dress and scenes, the large number of exteriors required are well chosen. Picturesque interiors have been furnished.

Alice Brady, as the patriotic Betsy Ross, appears in an emotional role, and is entirely satisfactory. The principal support is in the hands of John Bowers, Lillian Cook, and Frank Mayo, all of whom are well cast. In addition, George MacQuarrie in make-up and in acting is excellent as George Washington.

"Betsy Ross" is recommended for all. Its patriotic theme and Revolutionary setting will appeal especially to young Americans.

It begins at the peaceful New England schoolhouse where Nathan Hale is engaged. The industrious people of the time are presented at work and play. Then rapidly the action changes and the dissension with England begins to assume large proportions. We are now carried through the days when to pledge allegiance to the Colonists meant practically gambling away one's life. The success of their perseverance is responsible for our present preeminence as a Nation. Through showing extensively the events which transpired, the play follows chiefly the life of Nathan Hale up to the point where he rendered his immortal speech, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

The story is full of self-sacrifice. Robert Warwick makes of Nathan Hale a character you will always remember. His sweetheart, Alice, as played by Gail Kane, will have your entire sympathy and admiration for her devotion both to him and to her country's cause.

Her pride of over a century ago is shared today by all true Americans. Nathan Hale is a character which will always be an inspiration to his countrymen to accomplish "big things."

Were it not for just such noble patriots as Nathan Hale, the present day United States would not be in existence. You will be given an opportunity to see just how great were the hardships our forefathers had to undergo in order that today we might be a free nation.

Four priceless rubies are stolen from the British Museum by the Krogan Brothers, international crooks. While watched through a hole in the wall by the elder Wakefield, detective, they are themselves robbed by a gang who specialize on stealing from other thieves and are therefore heartily despised even by their own profession.

One of this "Breen Gang" is a woman, and when young Wakefield arrives with other officers previously summoned by telephone by the elder Wakefield, they break into the Krogan apartment only to find that the Krogan brothers have just been robbed. One of them is blind from a shot by the elder Wakefield, who himself lies dead, stabbed by a dagger identified by the police as belonging to the Breen woman and having several previous murders also to its credit. Young Wakefield vows eternal vengeance and starts for New York where he learns that one of the Breen gang has been seen.

On the steamer, but with identity unsuspected by him, are one of the Krogan brothers and also a young couple in whose possession are the stolen rubies. Krogan sees the rubies by means of a periscope held outside of his port hole and reflecting the interior of the adjacent stateroom. Wakefield falls in love with the young lady and later visits her at her father's home near New York, against the advice of the chief detective of his New York office. The Krogans have a home of their own only three miles distant and by a strange coincidence both Krogan and Wakefield are visitors at the home of the suspicious characters on the same night. The thrilling experiences of that night containing plot and counterplot, attacks and reprisals, hairbreadth escapes and thrilling chases, keep the spectator in a fever of suspense and excitement seldom equalled in a screen production. The Little Duchess

World

Featuring Madge Evans

Geraldine Alicia Elizabeth Endlebury Carmichael is the seven-year-old American daughter of Evelyn Carmichael, an English widow. To friends she is just Jerry-for-short. In the tenement live also the Dawsons, Grandma, Jim and his daughter, Sophia Dawson, who is of Jerry's age.

Jerry mails a letter addressed to Lord Carmichael in England, for her mother. Exacting a promise from Jerry to take care of certain papers, Evelyn, fatigued by her losing fight against death, passes into the Great Beyond.

When none of the neighbors wants Jerry, she is taken to an orphanage, where she makes a friend of Billy, another unfortunate.

In England, the crabbed old Lord Carmichael lives in solitary grandeur, surrounded by his men servants. He reads a letter from his daughter-in-law, Evelyn, in which she says his son is dead and she is dying, beseeching him to provide a rightful place in his household for his grandchild—and rightful heir. He had cast off his son when he married Evelyn. Lord Carmichael turns the letter over to his attorney, Thomas Bradford, who sails for America to bring Lord Carmichael's heir.

Jerry and Billy run away from the orphanage to see a circus parade, and overwhelmed by the spirit of adventure, they persuade Bill Snyder, owner of the circus, to take them in. Jerry learns to ride a horse, while Billy finds it hard and painful to become an efficient acrobat under Snyder's whip.

Bradford traces Jerry to the circus from which he takes her to Carnimore Castle. She is the first female to enter the household in thirty years. Lord Carmichael becomes furious. He had expected to find his heir a boy, and he learns to his bitter chagrin that Jerry is "only" a girl.

After due consideration with Bradford, Lord Carmichael consents to allow Jerry to remain, but she must wear boy's attire. He will not permit a petticoat in Carnimore Castle.

Jim Dawson arrives at Carnimore and presents Sophia as the grandchild of Carmichael, trying to substantiate his claim by presenting jewelry and papers which he had stolen from Jerry's mother. He is foiled in the attempt, however, and Carmichael, who has grown very fond of Jerry, is so glad that she really belongs to him that he allows her to resume her girl's clothing and the old castle after years of gloom again resounds to childish laughter.

"The Little Duchess" is an exceptionally fine juvenile play, and equally interesting to adults.

Having a love of adventure in common, they decide to go over to Pirate Island to search for Captain's Kidd treasure, but by an accident, they are marooned there, and obliged to stay over night. The following morning Peggy's father insists that Hamilton marry Peggy to save her good name, which he does, but his own father is so incensed at his having married a "bare-legged fisher girl," that he forces him to go back to college stating that he will have the marriage annulled. Tom goes much to his own dislike. Hamilton then has a stormy interview with Stanton who orders him from the house, but the excitement brings on a stroke and kills him. Stanton's sister, Mrs. Park, a society woman from New York, persuades Peggy to come to her home in the North. Thus it happens that a letter written by Tom fails to reach Peggy who leaves no address. Peggy is officially adopted by the Parks and becomes Margaret Treadway Park in whom one would scarcely recognize the former Peggy Stanton, nor would one recognize Tom Hamilton in young lawyer Thomas Curtis. The reason for the latter change of name, was that upon the death of his father, Tom's uncle had gained possession of his private papers and had made representations to him about his father which infuriated Tom with the name Hamilton, and caused him to decide to change it. By a strange fate, he became the lawyer for Peggy's adopted father and in this way was invited to their home and again met Peggy though he did not recognize her in Margaret Treadway Park. The Parks wanted her to marry a young millionaire whom she detested, and became so insistent, that she finally told them she was married when they first knew her, but had lost track of her husband, Hamilton. Curtis is directed by Mr. Park to find him and get the marriage annulled. Peggy, however, leaves the Park home and returns to her home in the South, where Curtis follows her and after a strange adventure on Pirate Island, in which the truth about his own father is brought to light, a reconciliation takes place, and the lovers are re-united.

A colorful, romantic dream of the last century, enhanced by the picturesque settings and costumes of the country where the scene is laid.

Fabien and Louis are twin brothers so alike in appearance, action and thought that they are hardly distinguishable. A local quarrel breaks out among the hot-headed Corsicans and a vendetta is established over a trifling incident. The Governor of the Island arrives with his beautiful daughter Emily, just after an assassination due to the vendetta, which is temporarily quelled by Fabien.

Louis goes to Paris to study law, where he continues the romance which was started with Emily in Corsica. A celebrated duelist, Chateau Renaud, is also a rival for the affections of the fair Emily. Renaud, however, is a dissolute young man of wealth with whom Emily has carried on a flirtatious but innocent correspondence during her school days. She begs him to return the letters, which he promises to do if she will meet him at the Bal Masque to be held that night at the Grand Opera House in Paris.

The scenes of revelry at the Ball are lavishly displayed, as is a rather bacchanalian dinner party given by Renaud at the early morning hour of 4 A. M. Louis is present as one of the guests, although not at all in harmony with the surroundings. Through a subterfuge Emily is persuaded to come for the letters at that hour, without realizing that she will be precipitated into a meeting with the dissipated diners. In mortification and embarrassment she undertakes to depart, only to find that the door is locked. Louis, in the most polite manner, solicits the privilege of escorting her to her home. This act so provokes Renaud that he challenges Louis to a duel, in which he is killed by the superior skill of Renaud, whose own seconds point out to him that a duel under the circumstances is nothing less than murder, unless Renaud should restrain his anger.

At home in Corsica, through a mysterious mental influence, Fabien is conscious of his brother's death, and leaves for Paris to avenge him. Events now move rapidly to a dramatic climax. Fabien visits Emily to discover just what has become of Louis and then follows Renaud to the country where he has fled to escape public indignation over the death of Louis. The scene is laid in the Far East where Norma Talmadge plays, at first, the part of a mandarin's daughter in old China, whose father seeks reinstatement in the Emperor's favor by giving his daughter San San to the Emperor's household. But San San is having her own beautiful romance, as the secret wife of the young American Consul (played by Thomas Meighan).

The Consul is ordered first to Shanghai and later to Manila. Hastily revisiting his former post, for the purpose of bringing his wife San San to his new office, he arrives only to find that her family have disappeared and left no trace. Heartbroken he departs.

Meanwhile, San San is presented at the Emperor's palace in the Forbidden City in the gorgeous panoply of the Emperor's favorite wife. Kneeling before his Majesty, she opens her mantle to disclose at her breast, Baby Toy, which has blessed her union with her "Love Man." In a rage, the Emperor orders her father and herself to be executed. Pretending to be moved by her tears, he promises her release and safe conduct to her home, but has her treacherously stabbed from behind the curtains as she leaves the room.

The child is saved and reared in the Emperor's household, an object of contempt on account of her alien blood.

We next see Toy (also played by Norma Talmadge) now 18 years of age, insulted by the pure bred Chinese of the Emperor's household, who are jealous of her because of her superior beauty and charm.

After a thrilling escape, she reaches Manila, becomes a Red Cross nurse, and falls in love with a young Lieutenant of the Army, but they are forbidden to marry by the Governor General (her father) on account of her Chinese blood.

Her father does not recognize her, but is conscious of vague reminiscences which, in a following illness and delirium, cause Toy (now his nurse) to recognize him as her father. In his convalescence everything is cleared up and the happy lovers are united.

A romantic melodrama laid in Mexico and the Southwest. Highlights include an aeroplane crash, a railroad wreck and a flood.

A spoiled daughter of the rich at a "bathing suit" party, agrees to marry an ardent suitor if he can outrace her in an aeroplane contest. Her plane crashes to the ground in Mexico, where she finds herself in a nest of outlaws. An American outcast engineer protects her from "greasers" and takes her to his shack. He is wounded by the greasers and nursed back to health by the heroine. Her hate for the domineering derelict gradually turns to love. Her fiance proves himself a cad and the girl gladly accepts the American after he rescues her from death in a flood, and proves his worthiness.

A splendid picture; well directed, well acted, well filmed; beautiful scenes in rugged mountains, heart interest, suspense, thrill and finally a satisfactory ending. It will be sure to please any audience.

Geraldine Barker finds a grey veil in the overcoat pocket of her fiance, Reginald Crocker. She also hears rumors that Reggie is altogether too fond of the proprietor of some beauty parlor. Geraldine arranges with the lady in question to rent the beauty parlor for a week in order to teach Reggie a lesson, but Reggie and the former proprietor are having too good a time for him to ever think of going to the parlor. Geraldine has a lot of amusement and so does the audience in observing her operation of the establishment. There comes to the parlor for a manicure Dick Annesly, a Western friend of Geraldine's brother. Later Dick meets Geraldine when he is a guest in her father's mansion. Geraldine is smarting from the inconstancy of her fiance and is also quite skeptical of the alleged puritanical disposition of Dick Annesly. So she starts quite a violent flirtation with Dick who falls hopelessly in love with her. She plays a rather serious practical joke upon him, resulting in his being accused of the theft of some jewelry in her Father's house when she was herself the real culprit. Of course, everything comes out all right in the end.

Donald Doyle, a sober pioneer settler, seeks in the West a home for his wife and baby girl. His twin brother, Jerry, a happy-go-lucky sort of a chap, left home twelve years before and has not been seen since. Chance takes him at mealtime to a bunch of cattle rustlers who are secretly headed by Sheriff Owens, but he refuses to join them. Jerry holds up the Canyon City stage carrying $10,000.00 and County Judge Brown and his daughter. Jerry finds the money, but prefers to steal a kiss from the Judge's daughter, saying that the kiss is the biggest haul he has ever made. Jerry is chased by a band of marauding Indians right into Donald's camp where the brothers meet and make common cause against the redskins. Donald's wife is shot and Donald himself so severely wounded that he is left for dead by Jerry who escapes with the baby. The sheriff and posse trailing Jerry for the robbery find Don wounded in his camp and through the resemblance to his twin brother arrest him for robbing the stage. Don realizes that Jerry was the real culprit but decides to sacrifice himself for his brother, as the death of his wife and the loss of his child leave him without further incentive.

The Judge's daughter cherishes a secret affection for the bold bandit who has no unceremoniously kissed her and discovering Jerry and the baby in a deserted cabin, Jerry is justified and the Sheriff is confounded and captured. The lovers then are married.

Frederick Arnold, a wealthy bachelor and a cynic who believes that any woman given a taste of luxury will crave more and more, sees Marjorie and decides to use her as a subject in order to prove his contention. Consequently he meets her and Mrs. Martin and makes it possible for Jack to make a great deal of money so Marjorie can have more luxuries. With increased wealth come finer surroundings, more costly clothes and more expensive amusements, all of which Jack is able to provide, but he gradually realizes that Marjorie's whole life is now being devoted to pleasure seeking and that he and she are not nearly so happy as formerly but are drifting apart. He decides to deliberately throw away his fortune by buying a losing stock in the market, but his attempt only results in making for him a still greater fortune. Then to his own amazement Arnold finds that he is in love with Marjorie and in his attempt to win her away from Jack a realization of their folly comes to both Jack and Marjorie just in time to prevent further unhappiness. This is a picture which is different. We cannot do better than quote from an article in "The Ladies' Home Journal" entitled, "WHEN THE MOVIES ARE GOOD":

"I have just seen a motion picture which in addition to being genuinely interesting has also a really high degree of artistry.

'Bill' is an adaptation of Anatole France's 'Crainquebille.' It is the saga of an old fruit vender who doesn't understand much of the world and against whom the world beats pitilessly. He is misunderstood, arrested, tried. He has lost his friends. He tries to go back to jail where he was comfortable. When he wants to be arrested, they refuse to arrest him. What a strange life, to be sure. A simple piece of character acting finely presented.

It has a great human appeal, which is more far-reaching than any sex appeal, or heart interest, or suspense. 'Bill' has an instinct for justice and he sees it meted out whenever he can in his small circle, particularly to the newspaper boy and his dog.

In the far north of Canada is situated "Caribou," a fur trading post. Here live old McTavish and his daughter Felice, "Shad" Galloway, an unscrupulous man and factor of the post, "The Fox," a renegade Indian, and Gabrielle Dupree, trapper and dog-sledge driver, who is in love with Felice.

Previous to the events in the story a blooded puppy being transported through the wilds in a crate fastened to a dog sledge had been dropped and lost. Later, adopted by a pack of wolves, he grew up as a member of the pack though he surpassed them all in strength and cunning.

Galloway, regarding Felice with covetous eyes, orders Gabrielle to go to Skagway with a valuable load of furs, but sends the Fox ahead to kill him and steal the furs. The Fox shoots Gabrielle, but the latter rolls down a snow bank and crawls away badly wounded while the Fox is hiding the furs. In a following blizzard he is found by wolves who are about to tear him to pieces when Rin-tin-tin the dog-wolf arrives and fights the pack leader for the prey. He kills the wolf and then starts for Gabrielle, who, weak from his wound, fights feebly and falls in a faint. The dog leaps upon him, but suddenly instinct—the inborn instinct of his ancestors—tells him that this is Man, his friend. And so instead of hurting him he stays near to guard him. Later the Fox returns to make sure that Gabrielle is dead and seeing him alive shoots at him again. He is about to finish him with a knife when the dog leaps to the attack and almost kills him to before the Fox succeeds in making his escape.

How Gabrielle finally succeeds in making his way back to the post; how Galloway against attempts to injure him; how the dog and the Fox again meet in deadly encounter; how the net of justice gradually tightens about Galloway; how the dog finally kills the Fox and brings about the capture of Galloway and the happy union of Gabrielle and Felice, will have to be seen to be appreciated. It's the greatest dog story ever written, the hero is a magnificent animal with almost human intelligence. And the ending—another surprise—will also delight you. A clean, fine, thrilling and satisfying picture that will delight every audience.

A Screen Classic showing the triumph of supreme Christian Faith.

David Graham, whose father was killed in the great coal mine, is a boy of deep religious feeling to which he gives expression in Sunday meetings of the children who listen spell-bound to his boyish sermons until a bad boy shatters their faith because David cannot perform the miracle of making a deaf and dumb girl talk through the faith he expounds.

He is educated by the mine owner and accepts the pastorate of a fashionable church in the city. He is deeply in love with the mine owner's daughter who reciprocates his affection, but his conscience continually urges him to go back to his people of the mines.

The miners feel that proper precautions are not being taken for their safety and send a delegation which interrupts a reception being given in the city by the mine owner, at which David is a guest and takes the part of the miner delegation in an effort to persuade the owner to improve the conditions in his mine. Unsuccessful in this, he leaves the city and goes back to take his place among the miners just as a cave-in at the mine occurred.

Then follow a long series of tremendously dramatic scenes in the mine, showing those imprisoned gradually succumbing to the lack of air and the frantic efforts of the rescuers extending over many hours of time to release them. No stronger sustained suspense can be imagined than is portrayed during this trying ordeal. Its effect upon the families of the miners, upon the officers and owner of the mine and upon the workers, is heart-gripping to every spectator. The final rescue finds hardly a dry eye in the audience.

The supreme thrill comes when the miners move in force to attack the office and the owner. David Graham pleads from the doorway for peaceful methods and the little deaf and dumb girl, now grown to womanhood, miraculously recovers her speech and addresses the astonished and humbled miners for the first time in her life.

This subject is particularly recommended for its high moral tone, not only in the family, but also with religious and other organizations seeking a subject of the uplift type.

Andy Applegate is the eldest of three orphan boys, and in addition to working the farm, he mothers his little brothers, Speck and Joey, in a way that arouses the respect and admiration as well as the sympathy of every spectator. Simple, everyday incidents of domestic life, charmingly portrayed, take on an added interest with Andy mothering his little brothers. A crabbed old Uncle covets the farm and has no spark of affection for his little nephews. By his machinations, he has the two young boys torn from the arms of Andy and sent to the County Orphan Asylum, while Andy is taken to his own home as a ward, for the Uncle has been made his legal guardian. Much of the interest and pathos of this story covers the hard life of the brothers at the Orphan Asylum and at Uncle Matt's. The village school teacher and a would-be scientific farmer bring in the romance of the story and finally get married, ostensibly to become the guardians of this small Applegate family.

A charming little story of country life, with a strong vein of pathos relieved by occasional sparkling humor. It is just the sort of a thing that might happen in everyday life and on that account makes a far stronger appeal than the highly colored dramas of society. This picture can be recommended for any and every audience.

The story opens with Jackie releasing the man-eating lion from his cage in the circus under the mistaken impression that the lion, being a man-eater, would be indifferent to lurching on a little boy. Here we get a good thrill at the very beginning of the story, and are prepared for the series of highly diverting incidents which follow in rapid succession. The number of escapades in which Jackie engages are too numerous to be mentioned here, but probably the star performance is capturing a bottle full of ants which are carefully domiciled in his father's lumbago pad just before that worthy puts on the pad to go to church. The ants escape from the pad and their restlessness produces a completely sympathetic effect upon Mr. Peck to the hilarious delight of those immediate members of the congregation who become aware of the source of his anguish.

Little Jackie Blair, a youngster whose father had died in France, started for America with his mother but two days out she also died and the little fellow arrived in this country alone.

By a strange accident Jackie eludes the Immigration Officers and finds himself on the streets of New York where he recognizes an old sailor, Cap'n Bill, whom he had seen on the pier, and whom he follows to his cheap rooms in spite of the Cap'n's efforts to drive him away.

Mrs. J. Livingston Blair, his wealthy grandmother, receives a letter from Jackie's mother, written just before they sailed, saying she is bringing Jackie to this country. The Grandmother immediately starts a search for Jackie, but he has disappeared from the pier and all efforts to find him seem useless.

Meanwhile the Cap'n, out of work, has been taken sick and Jackie makes valiant efforts to care for him. In spite of himself, the Cap'n cannot help loving the boy.

Then a strange chain of circumstances which end in Jackie's pursuit to the Cap'n's rooms by a policeman, an immigration officer and his own grandmother results happily. His identity is proven and Jackie goes to live with his grandmother whom he readily persuades to give employment to the old Cap'n as well.

Helen Ferguson as Rosemary Church

Also Pat O'Malley, Ethel Gray Terry and Margaret Seddon

At an anniversary dinner all the characters are suitably introduced by the guest of honor, Joe Church.

The story really opens on the Baldwin Ranch, where a lot of girl fruit pickers from San Francisco are camping and assisting to gather the fruit. Philip Baldwin is provoked to find that his irrigating pump is out of order because Marjorie Jones has insisted on doing some personal laundry up the stream and some of her lingerie has caught in the pump. Marjorie is very much of a flapper vamp and she soon has the unsophisticated Philip twisted around her little finger and sure that he is madly in love with her. In spite of his mother's caution to be sure that their tastes are similar, Philip rushes into matrimony with Marjorie, only to find too late that they had no common interests and very little patience with each other's differences. Their quarrels are very much enhanced by Philip's mother-in-law with whom they live. Marjorie finally leaves Philip and her baby boy, gets a divorce and marries a dissolute but wealthy Easterner, Roy North. Mrs. Grotenberg, better known as "Mamma G," has lived with the Joneses as a boarder for many years, and she takes Philip's little boy and rears him as her

In this respect the drama is superior to the novel in that it has a happy and satisfactory ending, and the character of "Manma G," is made the beautiful outstanding one of the entire production. The drama will be enjoyed by everyone who liked the book and by a great many who did not, on account of its superior ending.

Tom Drake, son of a small town minister, is himself studying for the ministry, and is organist in his father's church. He is in love with Irene Marley, a simple country girl, with a lovely voice and ambition for a stage career. By chance she meets Randall Sherrill, a theatrical producer, who offers her an opening in the city. Torn between her love for Tom and her longing for a career, she decides in favor of the latter and leaves for the city.

Sherrill becomes infatuated with her and deposes one star so as to make room for her as star in one of his productions, in return for which he forces her to marry him. The deposed star, goaded by jealousy, wires to Tom that Irene is in danger and Tom hurries to the city to protect her. He follows her to Sherrill's apartment to which he gains admittance just after Irene and Sherrill return from their secret marriage. Unknown to any of them, the deposed star is hiding behind a curtain in the next room. A quarrel ensues, and in a struggle for a revolver, Sherrill shoots and the bullet passing through the curtain kills the star on the other side.

Tom is accused of the murder, and when Irene testifies for him and against her husband, her testimony is thrown out on the ground that she cannot testify against her husband. Tom is sentenced to be executed. Nearly insane with grief and outraged at the injustice of the entire situation, Irene finally forces Sherrill, at the point of a revolver, to sign a confession, with which she escapes. Sherrill pursues and in a very thrilling chase, first by automobile and then on a locomotive, attempts to capture her as she is on her way to the prison, hoping to arrive in time to prevent Tom's execution. Fate intervenes, and in a thrilling railroad wreck, the pursuing train bearing Sherrill, collides with another. Sherrill is killed and Irene arrives at the prison just in the nick of time to save Tom's life, and of course it ends happily.

One of the most dramatic and stirring subjects conceivable—strong cast, strong plot, suspense, thrills, desperate situations and a happy outcome. What more could one ask?

she leaves his bedside to go to a social function, which is the first ray of sunshine in her married life. On her return she administers the medicine to her husband, who by a trick has mixed two similar medicine boxes so that he receives an overdose of sleeping powder instead of the harmless Aspirin, which she had intended.

Discovering the error too late, she telephones in desperation to her escort, whose brother (Monte Blue) is the District Attorney. These two brothers are the sons of a minister, who is also the guardian of a delightful girl (Norma Shearer), who has long been in love with Monte, but despairs of obtaining a declaration. She does, however, inveigle him into a romantic situation with a most delightful love scene and she is quick to construe an affectionate caress into a binding engagement. Gradually a very real and strong affection develops between Lucretia (Irene Rich), now a wealthy widow, and Monte. He makes up his mind to tell Norma that he does not really love her and, therefore, their engagement should be terminated, but an unfortunate accident to his father, which threatens to end fatally, causes the old man to selfishly insist upon an immediate marriage between his son and his ward.

Monte yields only because he has mistaken an affectionate attitude of Irene towards his brother, whom she is trying to save from the effects of a gambling debt. Too late, they all realize the terrible mistake that has been committed in the hasty marriage.

Then follows a terrifically exciting series of adventures in which Irene and Norma flee in their night garments through miles of burning forest with wolves, deer and bears also seeking safety. An apparent position of safety on a high trestle is destroyed by a burning powder-house, blowing up an adjacent dam and precipitating a torrential flood on which the trestle is washed away and the two girls struggle madly for their lives in the turbulent water. The spectator follows breathlessly from hairbreadth escapes to almost imminent destruction, and after the final thrill comes the beautiful ending which will send every spectator away enthusiastic in his praise of the production.

Featuring William S. Hart, Robert McKim, Marguery Wilson and Louise Glaum

Draw Egan is the head of a band of notorious outlaws, who are closely pursued by the sheriff and a large posse. Up hill and down vale, through stupendous mountain passes, ride the outlaws, hotly pursued. At a cabin in the mountains they make their last stand, and a terrific bombardment occurs. The bandits make their escape through a trapdoor. The cowardly member of the band, "Arizona Joe," sneaks out of the backdoor, only to fall into the clutches of the posse.

The band scatters and a little later we see Draw Egan alone maintaining his usual reputation for bravery in a saloon quarrel, where he is narrowly watched by Mr. Buckton, who is looking for a town marshal for the neighboring town of Yellow Dog.

Next we see Draw Egan as the champion of the reform element in the town of Yellow Dog, maintaining law and order in the saloon and closing it on Sunday. He is a model town marshal, but much of the credit of his rule is due to his affection for Myrtle Buckton, the daughter of his sponsor.

the marshal as his former bandit chief and spurred to revenge by the Queen of the Dance Hall (Louise Glaum), who has been plainly snubbed by the marshal, he decides to "show him up" before the town:

Of course, his friends in the Reform League are aghast at this new information, but the marshal, while admitting his identity and expressing his willingness to "give up" at sundown, expresses his intention of holding office long enough to make a prisoner of "Arizona Joe." Joe tries to shoot him from ambush, but fails and is victim of the marshal's unerring aim. After having a few hours to think it over, the Reform League decides that a live town marshal, even if he is an ex-bandit leader, is better than a dead one, or one returned to jail. Therefore, they retain him as marshal and pronounce him friend. The marshal's romance reaches a happy climax, in which we all rejoice.

This is one of William S. Hart's best type of western pictures, and with due tolerance for the bar room and dance hall scenes as typical of a by-gone era, the average audience will heartily appreciate this subject.

		Featuring Charles Ray and Sylvia Breamer

One of the most popular pictures ever produced by Charles Ray. At his country home we see Joel Parker, the awkward, diffident, country boy, whose father has really succeeded in convincing him that he is absolutely worthless. His father sends him to college as a result of a deathbed promise made to the boy's mother, but refuses to give him even a cent of spending money.

His college hazing experiences will recall similar experiences by many audiences.

One sweet little girl takes his part and endeavors to inspire self-confidence in him. He makes the ball team from lack of better material, but is slated as the mascot rather than a player. His old father hears of the game for the championship of the rival colleges and comes to see the game, to which he is escorted by the little sweetheart, who hopes that Joel will distinguish himself.

An excellent baseball scene is staged with various preliminary plays, leading to the sensational final half of the ninth inning with the score against Williamson and their best batter crippled.

With a man on third base, the Manager, in despair, puts on Joel Parker in the hope that he may make a pinch hit, bring in the man on third and tie the score. The audience is on tiptoe in breathless suspense with two strikes and two balls, when Joel catches the entreating eye of his little sweetheart and, to the amazing delight of the entire audience, "lifts" the ball over the back fence and not only brings in the man on third, but enables him to make a home run, this winning the game by 8 to 7 for his college.

Follows a scene of wild excitement, with the entire audience pouring over the grounds and carrying Joel on their shoulders from the field. That evening at the final ball, he tells the surrounding circle of hero-worshippers that the one little girl deserves all the credit, and in conclusion makes her happy by telling her the same thing—and probably a little more that is of interest only to two youthful lovers with life still before them.

Clean, straightforward, college-boy story, with a sweet thread of romance

Forgive and Forget

C. B. C.

Featuring Estelle Taylor, Vernon Steele, Pauline Garon and Wyndham Standing

Ames Cornwall's success in business causes him to be neglectful of his wife, who consoles herself by lavishly entertaining her friends at her lovely home. Among these is Ronald Sears, to whom she has foolishly written some love letters. Impelled by a strong feeling of chivalry, Sears allows himself to be falsely accused of theft, rather than risk having letters found on him, and is ordered from the Cornwall home. As he is leaving for parts unknown, his roommate, Blake, steals the letters, which Sears had intended to return to Mrs. Cornwall, and then by a phone call, part of which her husband overhears, Blake forces her to come to his apartment to bargain for them. They are interrupted by Sears, who has discovered his loss and in a struggle which follows, he is killed by Blake. Blake escapes, leaving Mrs. Cornwall in the apartment. A moment later, obeying a knock on the door, she is confronted by her husband, who, quickly realizing the danger of her situation, helps her to escape, but is himself captured by the police. Blake then returns and accuses him of the murder of Sears. He is arrested and convicted.

Driven to madness by the continually tightening web around her husband, Mrs. Cornwall finally buys a confession from Blake, who, after receiving the payment for it, steals it from her, but in attempting to escape from the desperate woman, he falls from a window and is killed. The confession is found in his pocket and Cornwall is released.

The terrible situation thru which they have passed brings the Cornwalls together again and as they agree to forgive and forget, all ends well.

A splendid production! The plot is exceptionally well developed and the suspense sustained to an unusual degree. These qualities, added to the well chosen cast and its photographic excellence account for the popularity of this subject.

With this unfortunate start their married life goes from bad to worse and Jo suffers frequent humiliation. Foster runs short of funds and Jo returns to her work in the movies while Foster, in order to secure more money for immediate needs, begins stealing it from his firm. Through all her trouble Brand is Jo's constant friend and helps her in many ways, but Foster is jealous and makes frequent threats against both. Finally his company discovers the thefts and tells him that the matter will be turned over to the authorities, and Foster goes home in such a desperate mood that Jo runs in fear to Brand's home whither she is followed by her furious husband. He then decides to flee from the authorities and to take his wife with him, and in spite of a terrible storm, he forces her into his car with him and drives off in mad haste, followed by Brand. The storm causes a flood which breaks a bridge in his path and Foster and Jo are flung into the torrent from which after much difficulty they are both rescued by Brand. Foster, however, has been fatally hurt and his death which soon follows leaves Jo free to accept Brand's love.

The president tried to make Fairbanks accept his proposition. He offered him a good salary to go down to Paragonia and open the mines. But money had no charms as compared to Brooklyn, New York, with its Queensboro subway, its proximity to Coney Island, and its nice, neat little haberdashery shops with their breezy Arrow collars, tailored suits and custom shoes.

Just then Douglas saw Alma Reubens. She was playing the role of Senorita Juana de Castille, daughter of the president of Paragonia. Her dark eyes, Spanish beauty, exquisite charm, suggestion of balcony romance and moonlight poetry changed his mind. "I'll go," said Duggie, "I have seen some views of Paragonia that have changed my mind."

From that moment things begin to happen. Douglas races after Alma to tropical Paragonia. He finds that revolutions have been tumbling over one another and the old Presidente has been tumbled into prison. There is a very repulsive gentleman by the name of Colonel Gargaras who wishes to marry Senorita Juana de Castille. The marriage is being forced upon her and it looks as though he will win out.

In the meantime Douglas is fomenting plots, digging out prison walls, making love to Senorita Juana way up on the balcony, knocking Central American gentlemen on the head and whirling along at a terrific U. until he made a man of himself. It hurt, but Larry took the hint and went out to Arizona where he succeeded in getting a job on a cattle ranch. The contempt the men at first felt for his inability to ride and rope was lessened by his willingness to work and learn, and he gradually grew very proficient. Phil, the ranch foreman, became his good friend. Phil was in love with Kitty Reid, who lived on the next ranch, but Kitty having been to school in the East wanted to go back and would not marry him. When she met Larry she fell in love with him, but Larry thinking only of Helen worked to help Phil win Kitty. At about this time Helen, who had not waited for Larry but had married a friend of his came West on her honeymoon. She was amazed to see Larry so completely changed and working as a cattle man. Larry who had just secretly purchased Kitty's father's ranch as a home for Phil and Kitty, was crushed at the news of Helen's marriage, but continued to do work for Phil.

Trouble was brewing with cattle thieves, and the ranchmen's tempers were tried. One day Larry saw two thieves at their work and captured one of them. Phil coming up just then thought Larry was part of the gang. Suddenly Phil was shot from ambush by the other thief. Larry returned his fire, but the thief escaped. He then carried Phil home and rode after the other and captured him, but the men believed it was Larry who had shot Phil and when they saw the empty shell in his gun, they were convinced of it. In the nick of time, the first thief Larry had captured, admitted that his companion had done the shooting and Larry was released. Phil recovered and to his joy learned that Kitty had changed her mind. He also learned that Larry had bought the ranch for him and Kitty, and they all had to admit that even if Larry was a "blamed millionaire" he was a real man.

There are some truly remarkable pictures of riding broncoes, roping steers and bull-dogging. Genuine cowboys take the parts of the extras. The director is to be congratulated on presenting a Western picture of ranch life and the West as it really is today. Superb scenery and photographic perfection help to make an entirely satisfactory picture that is recommended for any audience.

They are interrupted by more traffic cops, whereupon Barry takes French leave, eludes the cops and after a thrilling chase which he finishes on one of their own motorcycles, boards a freight train for Hillsboro.

Does he collect for the contract? We'll say he does. Wait 'til you see him fight and do a complete assortment of those marvelous athletic stunts of his, incidentally capturing two safe-robbers, exposing the mayor and his son, reinstating the marshall and changing the whole city government, not to mention winning over his own father and making the nicest girl say "yes."

The New School Teacher

Burr

Featuring "Chic" Sales

Adopted from stories by Irvin S. Cobb

Professor Timmons, a well-meaning but erratic young man, has been appointed school teacher and is welcomed at a reception given in his honor by Mrs. Buck. Little Waldo Buck, her son, is one of the Professor's prospective pupils, and for all his innocent appearance, is their ringleader in mischief. His older sister, Diana, is engaged to marry Wales who is jealous if anyone else even speaks to her. Due to Waldo's activities the Professor has several embarrassing experiences at the reception, but he does meet Diana who is kind to him. With the opening of school the Professor's troubles begin in earnest, and he is only prevented from resigning by Diana who asks him to "stick it out" for her sake. He then takes his boy pupils on a camping trip which brings him more troubles (to the great amusement of the spectator), and complications are introduced by the escape of a pyromaniac from a local institution, for whom the Professor is at first mistaken and who finally sets fire to the school building. Waldo is trapped in the fire, but is daringly rescued by the Professor who, having gained a point of safety with his burden, promptly faints. Wales seizes the opportunity to carry Waldo to his family and claim credit for the rescue, but Waldo himself recovers consciousness in time to direct the credit where it was really due. Wales leaves abruptly and Diana assumes the difficult role of life-partner to the absent-minded Professor.

An excellent picture. The portrayal of the Professor by the great impersonator, "Chic" Sales, leaves nothing to be desired. This is a refined, modern, comedy-drama of the sort we all want, and is recommended for any audience.

	Featuring Jack Mulhall, Pauline Garon, Alice Lake, Kate Lester and Shannon Day

Pauline is expelled from a very strict boarding school on account of some very mild infractions of rules which the spectator will enjoy rather than deprecate. On her way home from school she eludes her chaperon and makes a train acquaintance of a poor unfortunate girl (Shannon Day), who has just escaped from the reform school. Arriving at her station in the middle of a stormy night, Pauline finds that she is not expected and is many miles from her home. In despair she seeks refuge in a near-by house occupied by Jack Mulhall, an idealistic young author. Here the mad prank of impersonating the reform school girl occurs to Pauline, who puts it into execution. Her host is more or less appalled at her remarks, but assists her to escape from her supposed pursuers.

Later, at her home it transpires that Jack is engaged to her cousin. A number of complications of her dual identity enliven the story, but in the end everything comes out all right as it always should in a good motion picture.

A light drama with many humorous touches, and free from any objectionable features.

	Featuring Pauline Garon, David Powell, Burr McIntosh and Harrison Ford

Jimmy Monroe, a cub reporter, is told to write an article on the Average Woman. He can find little on this subject in books and decides to write from his own observations which center upon Judge Whipple's daughter Sally, who happens along just as this decision is reached. Jimmy starts to follow Sally who is going toward her father's office, and his chase leads him right into the Judge's chambers where, coached by Sally, the Judge reprimands him and sentences him to "report to the young lady once every week for instructions in etiquette." Out of this strange meeting develops a friendship which, on Jimmy's part at least, becomes very vital.

But Sally has many friends, among them, Rudolph Van Alten, a young man of shady reputation who makes his living by secretly conducting the Blue Boar Tavern. Judge Whipple does not approve of Rudolph or of several of Sally's other friends, and he and his close friend Colonel Crosby have many discussions in which the Judge expresses his belief that the average woman of today has descended far from the ideals of her mother and grandmother.

Rudolph persuades Sally to accompany him to the Blue Boar Inn where he tries to force her to marry him by showing her some papers which involve her mother in what Rudolph believes to have been a dishonorable act which he and she both know will deeply grieve her father. To save her father Sally consents, and when Jimmy suddenly appears she tells him she is going to marry Rudolph, and Jimmy leaves in disappointment. Just then, however, the Tavern is raided by the police and Jimmy with the Judge and Colonel Crosby go to rescue Sally.

Rudolph seeing the Judge, shows him the supposedly incriminating papers and brazenly demands his protection upon threat of making them public, but the Judge quickly shows him that the papers are harmless, and Rudolph's hoped-for protection falls flat. Hurrying back into the hotel he is confronted by an angry, jealous woman with whom he had pretended to be in love, and who upon being repulsed shoots and kills him.

Meanwhile, the three rescuers succeed in reaching Sally who, the Judge now realizes, had been ready to sacrifice herself in order to save him. His faith in the modern woman completely restored, the judge decides that the average woman is finer than she ever was and Jimmy loses no time telling Sally his strong convictions about the particular "average woman," who happens to be in his arms at that moment.

Strong cast, good direction, real acting, good plot and fine photography. Isn't that enough?

In the little New England town of Spell's River, George Bradley the blacksmith, with his wife and his son Jim, who ran the local garage, were eagerly awaiting the return from college of the older son Herbert, for whom Jim had a profound admiration and had always played second fiddle. Herbie, on his arrival was a little disappointing. He had grown quite superior and his attitude toward his family was one of toleration.

Jim was bashfully and awkwardly in love with Polly Crawford, the doctor's daughter. But he was not a ladies man as Herbie was and he envied his ability to dance. Nevertheless Polly preferred Jim.

All his life Jim had let Herbie shine while he modestly admired with the others. But suddenly there was a brutal murder in the quiet little village and both boys had encounters with the murderer. The way each conducted himself was characteristic. Herbie even tried to throw discredit on Jim in order to bring greater glory to himself but the truth could not be concealed and Jim came out splendidly in the end. His fight with the murderer will make even a jaded movie fan gasp, and when he rescues Polly and asks her to marry him and she says what everybody wants her to say, it sure does end just the right way and leaves you feeling happy and satisfied. Somehow you're glad that the first fiddle has broken down and the second fiddle been promoted.

A dramatization of the great stage success with the same star from the story written by Willard Mack and presented by David Belasco. The screen version gives a great deal more opportunity for sustained suspense than the stage version. It was taken in an environment of stupendous snow capped mountains and the scenery in many of the locations is superb. Rose, the heroine, is rescued from a raft floating down river and adopted by the kindly old Scotch factor at the Hudson Bay Trading Post. She loves a young engineer with a railroad surveying party and the dramatic interest of the story hinges principally upon her hiding and protecting this lover who is fleeing wounded after accidentally shooting the man who had brought trouble to the family of his sister. The spectator's suspense is wonderfully sustained and the dramatic situations are frequent and surprising. Anyone who saw the stage version should see the screen version and those who did not should be even stronger inclined to see the picture.

Daddies

Warner Bros.

Featuring Mae Marsh, Claude Gillingwater, Harry Myers, Craufurd Kent and Willard Louis

Reproduced for the screen from David Belasco's great stage success of the same title. A Bachelor's Club has been sadly depleted by the inroads of matrimony, despite the fact that each backsliding member is compelled to forfeit a check for $5,000.00 upon changing his condition from a bachelor to benedict.

One of the members is late at the meeting and announces dolefully that he has agreed to adopt a war orphan, left behind by a former classmate and pal who fell in action. His example is emulated by the others who decide to each adopt an orphan—some with great misgivings.

There is a great deal of quiet humor in the dialogue preceding the actual selection of children to be adopted. Later, when the orphans arrive, there are some amusing complications and the fun soon grows fast and furious. The old grouch insists upon adopting a boy and gets a girl instead. The most benevolent of the Daddies finds that he has adopted triplets. The hero adopts, as he supposes, a little girl of six, but finds that she is eighteen. The efforts of the amateur daddies to care for this young orphan asylum produces a condition of hilarity approaching hysteria.

The gradual evolution of the amateur daddies to professional ones is a delightful story. This picture will be enjoyed by everyone between the ages of six and sixty, whether they are or ever expect to be Daddies or Mothers.

Conductor 1492

Warner Bros.

Featuring Johnny Hines and Doris May

A comedy drama of unusual humor and charm.

Terrence O'Toole is a young Irishman who decides to seek his fortunes in America whence his father had returned after a brief sojourn in the United States some years before. Some very amusing native Irish scenes occur in the beginning on the subject. Later Terry is seen in the capacity of a motorman in a small American city. The president and vice-president of the trolley company are each owners of forty-nine shares of the stock and the balance of control is vested in two other shares belonging to a Mr. Rosenthal, who has disappeared. Terry falls in love with the President's daughter (Doris May) and his suit is advanced by his rescue of her kid brother who is racing the trolley car in a diminutive, but perfect automobile.

Terry lives at a boarding house with forty-seven roomers and two baths, requiring tickets for Saturday night ablutions. The tricks employed by the boarders to beat their regular turns are uproariously funny.

Terry's father joins him and contributes very ably to the humor of the story as it expands. One of the funniest specialties in this or any other comedy is a masquerade roller skating carnival in which Terry plays the front legs and an inebriated friend the rear legs of a camel. The screamingly funny antics of this camel in the Camel Walk and other dances on roller skates convulse every audience.

Near the end of the story the ownership of the missing certificates is divulged in a dramatic manner and their prospective loss is narrowly averted in a thrilling

Featuring John Barrymore, Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec. Francis and Carmel Myers.

Adapted from the play by Clyde Fitch.

The three angles underlying the theme of "Beau Brummel" are the fickleness of fortune, the test of friendship and the instability of popularity. Because of his intimacy with the Prince of Wales, Beau Brummel is able to influence his creditors and make himself the arbiter of English society. Women flock to his rooms in the vain effort to pick up the fragments of a heart hiding its ache behind the fripperies of clothes. At the height of his popularity, his salient wit makes an undiplomatic remark, which precipitates him into a deluge of misfortune. How he rises to heights and then becomes a paupered exile is shown in this photoplay.

Barrymore's acting, as the Beau, is the best thing he has ever done for the screen, which is saying a great deal after his memorable effort in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Our subscribers are fortunate in having available such a superlative production featuring this peerless American actor.

Samson, leader of the People of Israel, and a man of immense strength, is mocked by the Philistines for his belief in God and receives a divine command to lead his people against them. He is everywhere successful. He falls in love with Delilah, a woman of the Philistines, but soon tires of her love and plans to leave her, and in fury she seeks revenge. Learning that the source of his great strength is his long hair which has never been cut, she cuts it off as he sleeps and delivers him to his enemies, who put out his eyes and force him to grind corn for them. Then desiring to make sport of him, they bring him into the great temple where he is allowed to stand between two of the supporting pillars, and when praying for a momentary return of his strength, he pushes two of the pillars apart, allowing the roof to cave in on himself and a multitude of his enemies.

Edward becomes betrothed to his neighbor, May Fielding, but old Tackleton the toy merchant is also in love with May, and in an altercation he is roughly handled by Edward. On account of old Tackleton's importance in the community and well-known vindictiveness, Edward takes the advice of his friends and goes away to America for awhile to make his fortune. May's friend Dot and John Perrybingle, the mail carrier, are married soon after, and as no word is received from Edward, Tackleton induces Mrs. Fielding to agree to his marriage with May in exchange for cancellation of a mortgage he holds on their home. May consents only because she believes that Edward is either lost or has forgotten her. But Edward comes back, and when nearing home, he learns of May's engagement to Tackleton and disguises himself as an old man who is picked up by John Perrybingle beside the road, taken to his home and sojourns there for awhile. He discloses his identity to Dot who agrees to secrete him temporarily. Tackleton seeing Dot and the supposed old man together in affectionate discourse, tells John, who is consumed with jealousy, and decides to leave his wife. While contemplating this act he sees the blazing house of Caleb Plummer, and through great effort rescues Caleb and blind Bertha and takes them temporarily to live with him. Edward turns up at the wedding in time to become himself the bridegroom, and the merrymaking is crowned by old Tackleton's servant bringing in a huge cake with his Master's compliments.

In the little town of Fairview live Mayor Hiram Chadwick, his daughter Helen, Reverend Josiah Jenkins, his son Mark, and Jerry Sullivan, proprietor of a pool hall and an old-time prize fighter. Mark is in love with Helen, and one day hearing a town loafer make a disparaging remark about her, he thrashes him. The encounter is observed by Sullivan and is interrupted by the mayor who indignantly threatens to run Sullivan out of town, and also orders Mark to keep away from his house and his daughter.

Sullivan has been so impressed with Mark's fistic ability that he urges him to become a prize fighter saying that he can use the money earned to pay his way thru college. Mark does so and becomes a noted fighter. Meanwhile, he loses track of Helen and does not know that she has been injured and cannot recover without a spinal operation, which her father will not afford. Mark finally hears of it on the very day of his biggest fight in which he is to meet the champion. He rushes for his car and drives to Helen's house, carries her off to the city in spite of her mother's protests, sends for a surgeon and then goes to the fight in time to avoid losing it by default. He fights desperately, feeling that the money will pay for Helen's operation and at last knocks out the champion. Then news comes that his apartment is afire. A remarkable characterization of the famous story by Edward Eggleston depicting rural life in Indiana about ten years before the Civil War. Ralph Hartsook, the new Schoolmaster from the East, reports to Jack Means, Chairman of the School Board, and learns that he will have to "board around." He begins at Means' home where he soon makes a firm friend of Bud, the elder son, and learns to avoid the other members of the family, namely, Old Mis' Means and her daughter Mirandy. Hannah Thompson, an orphan, has been bound out to the Means family and does all their house work. Ralph discovers that she is superior to her employers. At the annual social event, the Spelling Bee, Hannah spells down even the schoolmaster, and he falls in love with her.

At about this time the neighborhood is becoming aroused over a number of highway robberies. Ralph, who is entirely innocent, falls under suspicion and is accused of having committed one of the robberies. He escapes from the mob that wants to lynch him, and runs to the Squire to whom he surrenders and of whom he demands a trial. He pleads his own case, but is having difficulty when Bud who has done some independent investigating comes to his rescue, and to the amazement of all in the court demands the arrest of Dr. Small and Pete Jones, Ralph's most vindictive accusers, who later confess.

In the course of the trial the prosecution had tried to use even Hannah's

With their savings exhausted, Juliet now accepts the contract which she had before declined. Frank recovers and accompanies the opera company, known only as the husband of the famous star, which is a terrible blow to his pride and precipitates a family dissension. In order to save her husband from humiliation, Juliet arranges with Sam, the Manager of the Company, to employ her husband in some capacity and pay him two-thirds of her salary out of her own earnings.

Mendoza, a former famous pianist, is compelled by an accident to his fingers, for which he unjustly blames Juliet, to become the Secretary of Sam and later falls in love with Sam's wife, Babette (Pauline Garon). Babette foolishly accompanies Mendoza to a dance hall near the theatre for a short time during one of the operatic performances, and while there the place is raided by the police. Mendoza gives their names as Sam and Juliet. This false identity, when played up in the newspapers, produces complications during which Mendoza's mentality fails and in an insane fury he attacks Sam. Babette comes to her husband's aid in valiant fashion. Later Mendoza attacks Juliet and Frank comes to her aid just in time to rescue her from Mendoza.

The action of the play moves swiftly, and is replete with numerous charming pictures of the beautiful Juliet (Irene Rich).

This is a photo-drama of the modern operatic stage, showing clearly the difference between the public ideas of such a life and its reality.

John's brother, Robert Moore, has accumulated great wealth, but lives alone and solitary in his magnificent mansion surrounded by his servants and material possessions. He has a group photograph showing the whole family of his brother John, and conceives the idea of making John and his wife a present of an independent livelihood in exchange for one of their seven children, which he can rear and cherish as his own.

The mother receives the letter in the day time and does not show it to the father until they are alone in the evening. Then, as he reads the letter, she looks at his worn and tired face and at his tattered clothes and steels herself for the ordeal of parting with one of the children that it may be for the happiness and welfare of all of the others. Thinking of the burdens he has borne and of the seven hungry mouths to feed, she puts her arm in his and says, "we will choose among them while they sleep," and from bed to bed they go, from one child to another, only in each case to decide that it cannot be "that" one.

Later a decision is reached, but the result is an unexpected one to both the family and the spectators who, however, are delighted with the solution and ending of the picture.

This subject is a beautiful example of rural life with the joys and sorrows of normal healthy children. Every parent will feel a glow of pleasure and every child a thrill of joy witnessing this beautiful drama of homely happiness.

The Colonel tries to avoid her, but subsides when she mentions legal procedure. That evening the Colonel, accompanied by his daughter, Mary, leaves for Florida. At the same hotel at which they stop, Jack Griffin, a bachelor, is registered and becomes enamored of Mary.

Soon after, Arbutus comes to the same hotel with a friend, Miss Pink, and a package of letters which the indiscreet Colonel had written, and around which the story now centers.

As a result of the confusion which follows, the Colonel hires Lester as a detective. Lester is retained by Miss Arbutus to keep an eye on Miss Pink; and the latter hires Lester to steal the letters from Arbutus. During the next few days the letters change hands no less than fifty times and cunning, conniving and comical coincidences play a part in the rapid fire exchange.

The Colonel will have nothing to do with Arbutus and Jack grows cold in his attentions to Mary. The two women get together and decide to be kidnapped, hiring Lester for the job. The kidnapping is effected—the women are piled on a boat with the Colonel and Jack in pursuit. On board the boat the two men are made prisoners. Lester, who has fulfilled his part of the bargain, gets the letters from Arbutus as remuneration.

In a situation that rapidly goes from bad to worse, Mary is threatened by a sailor who tries to force his attentions on her. Arbutus, conscience-stricken by all the trouble she has started, tells the Colonel she will never bother him again. Faced by this threat, the Colonel realizes he really cares for Arbutus, and Mary is comforted by Jack, who humbly apologizes for his former indifference.

Arline is the little daughter of Count Arnheim, governor of an Austrian province who lives in feudal splendor near a forest where a Gypsy queen and her tribe encamp. Devilshoof, the queen's lieutenant, comes by chance upon Thaddeus, a young Polish refugee pursued by Austrian soldiers. Devilshoof protects the youth and offers him the concealment of the Gypsy garb. Arline strays from the castle and is saved from a bear by Thaddeus who, with Devilshoof, returns her to her father. It is in the midst of a banquet and Thaddeus, a Pole, refuses to drink a toast to the Austrian emperor. Thaddeus is ejected in disgrace and Devilshoof vows revenge. He returns and carries Arline away. Twelve years of wandering find Thaddeus one of the Gypsy caravan and Arline grown to beautiful womanhood. Their love is discovered by the Gypsy queen and because of her desire to wed Thaddeus she swears to accomplish the downfall of Arline. Count Florestein, a friend of Arline's father, is robbed of a medallion by the Gypsies who yield it to their queen. This jewel the queen gives to Arline when the girl sets out for a fair where she tells fortunes. Among her patrons is Florestein who recognizes his medallion and orders the arrest of Arline. She is taken to the castle for trial where her own father is her judge. Count Arnheim is moved to gentleness he cannot understand, and when the Gypsy girl tells him her name he trembling summons the old nurse who instantly recognizes her lost darling. The story by no means ends here. There is more to keep you in suspense before the satisfying conclusion.

A picture with universal appeal amplifying the operatic theme of Balfe which for half a century has been known as the most tuneful of its kind. Clean, wholesome and dramatic it will appeal without possible criticism to the most fastidious audience.

In this play we have a mother driven to desperation by poverty and want. She is tempted to sell her new born baby so that it may live. The choice is given her of sacrificing her own mother heart or seeing the little life which she brought into being snuffed out by dire want and privation of the simple requirements of existence.

The whole story, its baffling complications, revolves around the great question—will she or will she not place in the arms of another woman the babe which God gave to her?

To divulge the outcome of her intense mental struggle in arriving at her decision, would be to rob picture lovers of much of the enjoyment which this photoplay holds in store for them.

This is not a sex picture nor a human triangle, but the range of emotional acting makes it better adapted to adult audiences than for children.

He tells one of his employees, Joe Merrill (Bryant Washburn), that unless he can collect a bill of $25.00 against Tim Perrin within a week he can get another job. Joe finds the bill is seven years old, and Perrin refuses to pay it, producing a cancelled check for $25.00 which he claims was made in payment for the bill. Perrin's principal business is running a cement works, and he is properly credited with being harder than his own product. His daughter Rhoda (Billie Dove) has acquired a French accent and started a Parisian dressmaking shop, which her father is compelled to manage secretly to avoid being bankrupted by its operation. Joe gets thrown out of the cement works office several times by Perrin's rough workmen, and finally lays siege to the dressmaking establishment where all sorts of funny things happen. Joe manages to make his various visits cost Perrin many times the amount of his bill, and finally Perrin tells him that if he will come to his office the next morning

		From the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow"
		Featuring Will Rogers

Washington Irving's famous story in which we find those old friends of our school days, Ichabod Crane, Katrina Van Tassel, Brom Bones and the rest, in a splendid picture which would have pleased Irving himself.

One day in 1790 there arrived in the little town of Sleepy Hollow, a new school master from Nieuwe Yorke, an awkward uncouth man named Ichabod Crane. He was met by the school committee and citizens and sent to "board around." Thus he met the charming Katrina Van Tassel, daughter of the richest man in the community. But Katrina had many admirers, most favored among them being Abraham Van Brunt or "Brom Bones" a handsome dare-devil of a fellow who regarded Ichabod's arrival in a not-too-friendly manner. Consequently as Ichabod seemed to find favor in Katrina's eyes Brom laid plans for his downfall.

In those days stories of witches and goblins found credence. Ichabod was a firm believer in them and fearful were the tales he could relate. On the night of the big quilting party at the Van Tassel's, Ichabod the ungainly, borrowed an old nag and arrived in what to him seemed great style. Brom was there too, handsomer than ever, on his fine horse. Katrina smiled on both. As the evening advanced, tales were told of the headless horseman who had often been seen near the little church bridge which Ichabod had to pass on his way home. Ichabod who had come alone grew nervous at the recital and was the last to leave. As he came to the bridge his horse refused to go forward and Ichabod suddenly saw a weird black figure on a horse waiting near the bridge. His "who's there" went unanswered and his hair rose in horror as he finally forced his horse to cross the bridge and then saw that the other rider was following and that it was the headless horseman himself! Madly he galloped toward home, but as he glanced behind him he saw that his pursuer carried his head in his hand and was about to throw it at him. As the "head" fell Ichabod was knocked from his saddle, but being uninjured he ran off thru the woods, while the horseman who was in reality Brom Bones enjoyed a hearty laugh at his expense. Ichabod left the neighborhood for good and shortly afterward the marriage of Brom and Katrina was celebrated.

A delightful story, clean, cleverly acted and of both literary and historical interest. It is recommended for any audience.

Here is the romance of Zuleika, favorite wife of a great Sheik, beloved by the Sheik's son and herself loving a young rug merchant, whom she has seen from one of the palace windows. The young Sheik's pursuit of Zuleika leads his father to order her execution, but at the critical moment the young man wins her reprieve by confessing that it is he and not Zuleika, who is to blame.

About this time a band of strolling entertainers arrive in the city. A beautiful dancer, a hunchback clown in love with her, and an old hag make up the company. The old Sheik sees the girl dancing and adds her to his Harem, where she is made his favorite wife, succeeding Zuleika. The latter, thus relieved of her obligations to her master, connives with her confidant Haidee, to visit the young rug merchant at his shop. By a strange chain of circumstances both the hunchback and the rug merchant are smuggled into the harem and the young Sheik also manages to enter.

From his concealment, the hunchback sees the dancer and the young Sheik. The old Sheik enters and attempts to kill his son, but the girl steps in front of him and receives the fatal sword thrust. The young Sheik flees, but is overtaken and killed by his father. The Sheik then surprises Zuleika and her lover in the Harem, surrounded by the women of the palace. The women try to thwart the Sheik, but he advances to slay the erring pair. As he raises his sword, the hunchback leaps upon him and stabs him in the back. The Sheik expires and Zuleika and her lover escape from the palace.

To a dingy and sordid boarding house in gloomy Bloomsbury Square, London, peopled with mean-spirited and unhappy failures, comes a stranger, seeking quarters.

The stranger, by refusing to see in the scheming landlady and her quarrelsome boarders anything but the best, succeeds in calling out the best in each, and one after the other they become morally rehabilitated. Before his kind smile and understanding words their bickerings and meanness disappear. They grow more tolerant toward each other, and at the same time strangely happy.

Finally, when love has replaced hatred as the governing spirit of the household, the Stranger passes from their midst as mysteriously as he came.

The story is in a large measure symbolical, but aside from its spiritual message it has many humorous and dramatic qualities.

The screen is fortunate to have secured for the Stranger, Sir. J. Forbes-Robertson, the actor, who created the role and for eight successive seasons played it in Great Britain, the United States and Canada.

Kismet

Robertson-Cole

Featuring Otis Skinner, Hamilton Revelle, Rose Mary Theby, Herschell Mayall, Eleanor Fair and Leon Bary

Kismet has been called the one thousand and second story of the Arabian Nights. It is the tale of the day of days in the life of Hajj, the beggar, who dwelt in Bagdad in the first year of the reign of the Caliph Abdullah and begged upon the stone of the door of the Mosque of Carpenters.

Between the rise of the sun and the coming of night Hajj rises from the dust to affluence and returns again to the dust from whence he came. He meets his mortal enemy and slays him in the prison where they are thrown together. He fights the Wazir of Bagdad, son of his mortal enemy, and drowns him in the pool of his own magnificent harem, at the same time rescuing his daughter from the Wazir's clutches. Featuring Ralph Lewis, Johnnie Walker, Virginia True Boardman, and Frankie Lee

For twenty years Dan McDowell had sat on the driver's seat of Engine 27 and urged his three horses to the fires. Then came the motor apparatus. The horses were sold as so much junk. Dan's hands were too old to master the steering wheel. He was discarded, retired at a small pension.

Johnnie, his son, was studying medicine. To keep him in college required money. Dan, after a weary search, was reduced to digging in the streets. There he met "Bullett," the old fire-horse, pulling the dirt-cart. Man and beast—discarded as useless.

Old McDowell's humiliation was complete when he was accused of stealing the old fire-horse he loved so well. Then he was exonerated and released from prison just in time to hurry to a big fire. On his way he met "Bullet," again broken loose, and following the habit of years in answering the clanging bell.

Arrived at the fire Dan found that his son Johnnie and June, his sweetheart, were imprisoned beneath a pile of debris. Mounting "Bullet," Dan rushed through the flames and the horse, hitched to the debris, freed the prisoners.

Johnnie was able to finish his medical course and marry the girl of his heart while Dan found happiness in his appointment as guardian of the ex-fire horses who had been pensioned and placed under his care for the remainder of their days.

A grippingly dramatic story of American home life; of the devotion and sacrifices of a father; of the loyalty and fealty of a son. Combined with its tense drama and tender romance are some of the greatest thrills ever yet seen upon the screen.

Beyond the Rainbow

R.C.

Featuring Harry Morey, Billie Dove, Marguerite Courtot, George Fawcett

Marion Taylor, Secretary to Edward Mallory, refuses the advances which he continues to make, even after his engagement to Frances Gardener. Badly in need of money to care for her frail little brother she accepts James Wade's offer of $100.00 to accompany him to a ball at the Gardener's, where by appearing with Marion he hopes to make another girl jealous. During the ball a younger daughter of the Gardeners circulates several copies of a note reading—"Consult your conscience. Your secret is public knowledge." And the effect on each of the recipients is surprising and disconcerting. As a result of this prank an atmosphere of suspicion prevails. Then Mallory unexpectedly arrives and also receives a note. Startling complications follow, as a result of which Mallory is shot and Major Forbes, whom Marion had just met, was accused of the shooting. But it came out wonderfully. The real culprit was captured. Mallory recovered. Marion's little brother regained his health, and when Major Forbes persuaded Marion to share his heart and home their happiness was complete.

This story is recommended not alone for its strong cast, but for its interesting plot, cleverly sustained suspense relieved by genuine humor, superior photography and excellent settings.

Laura E. Richards' well-known story featuring Baby Peggy, Hobart Bosworth, Harry Morey, Irene Rich

On a small island off the coast of Maine live Jeremiah Judkins, keeper of the light, and "Captain January," a little girl who had been cast ashore after a shipwreck. Since then she had been lovingly cared for by Judkins and her devotion is the one big thing in his life. Happily they dream of the future in which they shall sail the Seven Seas together. Then comes the day when fate brings to his little island a yacht bearing a Mrs. Morton, who discovers in the little Captain the daughter of her lost sister and Judkins sadly consents to her taking the Captain away with her to Boston. Night after night the little girl cries herself to sleep while Judkins unhappily tends his light and longs for

In a little coast town of Norway live Thelma Guldmar, just returned from her education in France, and her father, Olaf, a rugged Norseman of royal ancestry.

Thither, enjoying a pleasure cruise on his yacht, comes Sir Philip Bruce-Errington, a young man popular in London society. A chance meeting with Thelma rouses his interest and he is strongly attracted to her. Later, he learns her name and then contrives to meet Olaf and be properly presented to his daughter. The young couple soon fall in love and Thelma consents to be Lady Bruce-Errington.

In London the marriage causes quite a stir and Thelma's presentation to society is a brilliant occasion. Her beauty and charm of manner quickly win her many friends.

But Lady Clara Winsleigh who had previously been disappointed in her hope of marrying Sir Philip, spitefully plots to estrange the happy couple. How her plans develop and their outcome make an excellent story.

It is well directed, well titled, well acted and well filmed, and you will enjoy it.

Captain Martin Manning retires from the sea and buys a little home near the harbor where he can be in sight of his ship the "Swallow." But a delegation of sailors from the nearby "Mariner's Home" tell him the old sailors believe the ship's presence is bringing them bad luck and order him to leave. Refusing to do so without a fair hearing, Manning appears at the Home and tells the inmates the thrilling story of the "Swallow"—a story of plotting and intrigue; of a treacherously wounded captain and a villainous snake-worshipping crew; of mutiny, murder, fighting and shipwreck. It is a stirring tale well told. And it wins the approval of even the old sailors themselves who hasten to assure the Captain that he is a sailor after their own hearts, and they are proud to have him and the "Swallow" near them.

She is also sought in marriage by Judson, an attractive but poor engineer, and by Anthony, a wealthy friend of Goring.

Gina is unable to decide between the pleas of her lovers, a sense of duty which would cause her to stay at home and care for the family, and the importunities of DeSalvo, a great operatic impressario who offers her every reward in the Path of Ambition.

Almost distracted with doubt and hesitation, she is offered by a Hindoo Mystic the opportunity of seeing in a crystal the result five years later of each of the three careers open to her.

In the characterizations afforded by these parts, Clara Kimball Young does some of the best work in her career. The visions are worked out logically and Love triumphs, to the satisfaction of all. The plot has a tense, gripping, emotional interest and holds the spectator spellbound. It is a drama of sophistication and disillusion, rather than the glamour and romance of youth.

The scene left him grief-stricken and bitter toward mankind, desirous only of wreaking vengeance upon Burton, for which he waits and watches his opportunity.

Webster's daughter, Marjorie, known as the "Angel Lady" presides over a Mission which is often visited (unrecognized) by her father, whose one softness is his love for his daughter. Burton's son, Ted, falls in love with Marjorie. Webster finally forces a confession from Burton only to be confronted by his daughter and Ted, whose happiness will be wrecked if he insists upon using the confession to vindicate himself.

He tears up the confession and, spiritually uplifted, returns to the prison to serve out the rest of his sentence.

In Three Episodes

The former "Tarzan of the Apes" has become Lord Greystoke, living happily in England. Due to the apprehension of his mother, Lord Greystoke's son has been kept in ignorance of his father's early history. The boy shows, as a natural inheritance, a tremendous interest in wild animals.

In spite of the objections of his parents, he insists upon visiting a theatre where Ajax, a trained ape is being exhibited. Ajax is none other than "Akut," Tarzan's former companion in the African jungle. He recognizes in Jack the familiar lineaments of his father, and when the father comes to the theatre to take Jack home, he addresses Akut in the ape language, to the great astonishment of all the spectators. Of course, after that Lord Greystoke has to tell Jack the story of his early life. Jack secretly visits the ape's trainer and learns some of the ape language.

When his father decides to purchase Akut and return him to the jungle, Jack, by a clever ruse, leaves home and goes to Africa on the same steamer with the ape. Later the two take up life together in the jungle. Soon afterward they rescue a little waif, Meriem, from the cruel Sheik who is supposed to be her father, but who really had stolen her from her parents when a very little girl in revenge for punishment properly inflicted upon the Sheik's brother by Meriem's French father, Captain Jacot. Jack, Meriem, and Akut live a life of thrilling adventures in the dense African jungle.

Paulvitch, a former enemy of Tarzan, conspires with two other renegades, Malbihn and Jenssen, to capture Meriem and obtain a large reward offered for her return to her father. At first they are unsuccessful. They capture Jack and endeavor to make him lead them to Meriem, wounding him when he refuses to do so. Meriem is recaptured by the Sheik, escapes, and is attacked by a tribe of apes; is rescued by Jack, now known for his prowess as "Korak, the Killer," only to fall into the hands of Malbihn and Jenssen.

Paulvitch lures Lady Greystoke out to Africa on the specious promise of restoring her lost son to her, and while Paulvitch and the Sheik are gloating over the double capture of Meriem and Lady Greystoke, they are overpowered by Lord Greystoke, "Tarzan," who has followed his wife into the African wilds.

Korak thinking Meriem is dead wanders disconsolately through the jungle with Tantor, the elephant. Korak is again seized by the Sheik and cruelly sentenced to be burned at the stake. Tantor comes to his assistance, pulls up the stake with Korak bound to it and rushes off with him into the security of the jungle. There again they meet Lord Greystoke, who discovers in Korak his long lost son and returns with him to Lady Greystoke and Meriem, who now finds in Jack the lover rather than the big brother of her earlier years.

This serial is full of action, thrills and sustained suspense. Enjoyable to everyone, it will be doubly so to those familiar with the book from which it was derived.

It can be run in three episodes as divided, or better still, all three episodes shown consecutively in a single evening's entertainment. Some will prefer it as a serial and some as a complete production. It may be obtained either way. Please indicate which you prefer.

Dave Marshall is the son of a big ranchman. Thru the plotting of Luke Severn, who is head of a smuggling band on the Mexican border, he is placed in a wrong light before Don Juan Estrada, a wealthy Spanish gentleman, and his daughter, Carmelita. Early in the story, Marshall is forced by Severn's cruelty to fight for the protection of the horse Silver King. He wins the fight and the horse. Later the horse is stolen by Severn and sold for "bull bait."

The big scene is set in a Mexican bull-fight arena where Silver King is about to be gored by a ferocious bull. But Marshall trailing his beloved horse finally finds him in the arena and hurdling down over tiers of boxes and leaping across the heads of the crowd he grapples with the bull and finally throws him and saves the horse. He also wins the love of Carmelita whom he had previously rescued from a runaway stage coach. Later Severn is branded as the leader of the smugglers.

Principal Pictures

Featuring Joe Butterworth and Mary Jane Irving

The Bensons are in dire straits. John, the head of the family, is an inventor who devotes one half his time to trying to perfect a patent fire extinguisher and the other half to violating the Volstead law. Billy, their only son, worships his father and believes his mother to be a saint. Mrs. Benson keeps their dilapidated home together by taking in washing. Like all boys, Billy goes fishing and swimming and because he does this to the exclusion of more serious things in life folks in the village of Engleside, where they live, look upon him as a "bad boy." His only champions are his dog, Brownie, and Judge Fawcett's daughter.

Finally the invention proves a success and Benson calls on his lawyer, Sidney Marvin, about it. Marvin confers with Walter Howe and the two men plot to steal the model. This they do by concocting a false charge against Benson and having him locked up. Meantime Mrs. Benson becomes desperately ill and is taken to a hospital. Billy is the only one left to keep up the home. While he is visiting the hospital Howe goes to the house to seek the model. Judge Fawcett's daughter calls there at the same time and, hearing Howe, hides in a closet. In his search Howe tips over a lamp and the house is set ablaze.
